50-YEAR 'L' LEASE OPPOSED

While opponents of the so-called Subway Lease and West End omnibus bill are concentrating their forces to fight the measure, which they say will result in the Boston Elevated Railway Company getting a monopoly of the new as well as the present subways, members of the committees on Metropolitan Affairs and Street Railways of the Legislature are being polled on the measure.

The committees are divided, but a favorable report on the bill is presaged by the informal vote taken last Friday evening. At that time, with several members absent and others reserving the right to dissent, the vote taken by raising of hands, was fifteen to seven in favor of reporting the bill before the committees.

Crane Starts Poll.

It is uncertain when the bill will be reported to the Legislature or in which branch. Representative Russell D. Crane of Cambridge, who is clerk of the committee on street railways, to-day started a formal poll of the members of both bodies.

The members absent from the meeting at which the informal vote was taken last Friday were Senator Roland M. Keith of Bridgewater and Representatives Grafton D. Cushing of Ward 11, Boston, William R. Thomas of Quincy, Clarence Nickerson of Hull and George T. Daly of Ward 12, Boston.

Members present who reserved the right to dissent were Senators Charles H. Brown of Medford and Michael J. Murray of Dorchester, and Representatives Bothfield and Ellis of Newton, Lomasney of Boston, Parker of Woburn and Hurd of Salem. The poll is being taken in place of a formal vote by both committees. When Mr. Crane completes it the report will be made, probably to the House.

Report on Bill.

The bill will be made the subject of a report to-morrow afternoon to the directors of the Chamber of Commerce by the Committee on Public Utilities, which has been studying the measure since it was introduced. There is much interest taken by the Chamber of Commerce directors in the measure and it is expected the discussion will be a lively one.

The Andrew Square Improvement Association meets to-night in the municipal building at Upham's Corner to discuss the bill, and meetings by similar bodies in other sections of the city are being planned for this week.

Lawyers, both in the Legislature and throughout the city, read with interest Corporation Counsel Babson's opinion that the fifty-year lease of the subways to the "L," as provided in the bill, would leave the city absolutely defenceless in the transit situation. He argues that all subway and tunnel leases should end in 1936.

HYDE PARK POSTAL SAVINGS BANK OPEN

Hyde Park's postal savings bank opened for business to-day, but not exactly with a rush. There were several depositors when the institution opened at 8 o'clock, but under orders from Postmaster-General Hitchcock, Postmaster Samuel G. Moseley is forbidden to divulge the number of depositors, their names or who had the honor of making the first deposit. Postmaster Moseley was, however, not disappointed. Charles R. Higbee, Jr., is superintendent of the banking department of the Hyde Park office, and Elliot Ford, a clerk in the postoffice, is cashier. The depositors will be paid at the rate of 2½ per cent. interest on the bonds issued to them on and after July 1.

EIGHT RACES AMONG 78 CABIN PASSENGERS

The Red Star liner Manitou arrived in Boston to-day with 78 cabin passengers and a large cargo of freight from Antwerp, Belgium. Eight races of people were represented in the small cabin list. Many of them were skilled mechanics coming here to work. Sore Cohen, daughter of Mrs. N. Cohen of No. 91 Silven street, had a severe attack of chickenpox. She was attended by Port Physician William M. Gay, who held mother and daughter at quarantine.

PITTSBURG, June 12.—At a given signal last night sixty-nine waiters went on strike at the Pittsburg Athletic Association Club, the newest and richest of Pittsburg's clubs. Nearly 200 members were at the table at the time. The waiters had had a row with the head steward.

DR. M'CULLOM'S BRIDE FORMERLY MRS. G. E. RUSSELL

MRS. WM. P. McCULLOM.

DR. M'CULLOM WEDS DIVORCEE

News of the secret marriage of Mrs. Gertrude E. Russell, the divorced wife of Charles V. Russell, a Dorchester undertaker, to Dr. William P. McCullom, a Dorchester physician, leaked out today. The ceremony took place in Providence, Sunday, June 4. Mrs. Russell secured a divorce from her former husband on November 1 for cruel treatment.

Among other things testified to in court at the time of the divorce trial the wife said that her husband made ugly faces at her, pinched her, struck her and threatened to brain her with a shovel. Mr. Russell contested the divorce and made a general denial. Mutual custody of their four-year-old son, George F., was decreed by the court.

Mrs. Russell and Dr. McCullom left Dorchester on Sunday afternoon, June 4, and went to Providence in an automobile, where they were married by the Rev. Asbury Kron, a Congregational minister. After the ceremony they went on a honeymoon trip through the South. Mr. and Mrs. McCullom are expected to return to Dorchester to-day. They will reside on Bloomfield street. Dr. McCullom has an office at No. 347 Bowdoin street. Charles Russell, the undertaker, has an establishment but a few hundred yards away at No. 219 Bowdoin street.

JACK JOHNSON IN ALL HIS GLORY STARTLES LONDON

LONDON, June 12.—Accompanied by his white wife, two trainers and a gorgeous amount of gay clothing which he intends to spring upon the coronation crowds, Jack Johnson landed from the liner Kron Prinz Wilhelm at Plymouth, to-day, and immediately came to London by train. The negro pugilist created much interest. His wife wore a large quantity of jewels, and Johnson frequently smiled at the attention he caused, showing his famous gold teeth that assay a small fortune to the ton.

HOW SUGAR TRUST WAS BUILT UP

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Another trust investigation was gotten well under way to-day when the Hardwick Committee appointed by the House to investigate the American Sugar Refining Company and other refineries alleged to have formed a sugar monopoly began its hearings with the following witnesses waiting to testify:

James H. Post of the National Sugar Refining Company, Adolph Segal, formerly of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining, and Edwin F. Atkins, Washington B. Thomas, Charles R. Heike, Lowell M. Palmer and John E. Parsons.

Edwin F. Atkins of Boston, acting president of the American Sugar Refining Company, was the first witness called. Mr. Atkins said that he had been with the American company since its formation. Before that time, he said, he had been interested with his father in the Bay State Refining Company.

In 1887, Henry Havemeyer purchased the Bay State company, along with about sixteen other sugar refineries, he said, in telling of the American Refining Company's growth.

"Did Havemeyer merge these sixteen refineries to cut off competition?", asked Chairman Hardwick.

"I presume so," said Mr. Atkins.

"Can you give the percentage of the sugar business handled by those seventeen combined companies?"

"I cannot," said the witness. "As I remember it there were five or six companies that did not go into the Havemeyer combination."

Mr. Atkins said that the Havemeyer company was a "holding company" and acted as "trustee" for the various subsidiary companies."

BELIEVE PRISONER HEADS BURGLAR GANG

BROCKTON, June 12.—The police believe they have the leader of a desperate secret society in Peter Kolunis, who was indicted by the grand jury at Plymouth, last week, on several counts of burglary. When searched after his arrest in South Boston, a magazine revolver was found in his possession, together with other bandit paraphenalia. He is believed to have been a member of the bandit gang that shot up Jamaica Plain. In a confession to John Romanus, Brockton Police Court interpreter, Kolunis said that he was the leader of the "Free Thought" Society, which had thirteen members in this city. Romanus explains that the society is composed of men who have no respect for law, do not believe in God or anything else, and whose chief aim in life is to burglarize, kill and ruin.

PROTESTS DELAY IN DANVERS DEATH CASE

Mrs. Nlies G. Freeman, widow of the Lynn man who died under mysterious circumstances in the Danvers Insane Hospital, made a protest to-day because no effort has yet been made to investigate the case. District Attorney Henry C. Atwill of Lynn stated that he had been unable to pursue the investigation because of the pressure of criminal business. He has before him the statements of doctors and attendants at the hospital, who assert that Freeman died of softening of the brain. Since the fatality a week ago they have refused to discuss the case. Freeman was buried in the cemetery at the hospital.

Dr. Harry K. Foster, although he did not view the body, declares that he is of the opinion that death resulted from natural causes.

POSTPONE THE EDDY WILL CASE HEARING

CONCORD, N. H., June 12.—The hearing in the will contest of the Mary Baker Eddy estate, which was set for a hearing today, was postponed until June 19 by agreement of counsel for both sides. Baker, the executor of the will, restraining and enjoining him from moving the property of the estate out of New Hampshire.

BIG BAIL IN STOKES SHOOTING

NEW YORK, June 12.—Lillian Graham and Ethel Conrad, the chorus girls accused of shooting W. E. D. Stokes, millionaire proprietor of the Hotel Ansonia, at their apartment on Wednesday evening, were admitted to bail to-day by Magistrate Freschi in West Side Police Court.

Bail was set at $25,000 each, one of the highest figures ever recorded in a similar case in New York city. This was because of the fact that serious symptoms have developed in the wounds of the injured millionaire and he is now threatened with blood poisoning. The charge against the girls is now that of attempted murder, which will be changed to murder in the first degree if Stokes should die. Magistrate Freschi set Wednesday for the next hearing.

Mrs. John Singleton, a sister of Miss Graham, who was also acquainted with the millionaire hotel proprietor, is racing across the Atlantic with documents believed to be additional letters written by Mr. Stokes to Lillian Graham. It is intimated this evidence will play an important part in the defence.

Mrs. Alice Andrews, another sister of Miss Graham, is crossing the continent as fast as steam can bring her to be near the imprisoned girl. She is also expected to reveal some of the secret chapters in the life story of the younger sister, who, in a public statement, has charged Mr. Stokes with having wrecked her happiness and then cast her aside.

ADAMS HOUSE BUYS ADJOINING PROPERTY

A large addition to the Adams House on the Mason street side is contemplated in the purchase by George G. Hall, manager of the Adams House, of the parcel at No. 80 Mason street, owned by the John Federhen estate. The purchase price was $100,000, or $20,000 more than the assessed valuation. The property has been leased by the Adams House for years and comprises a one-story brick building, containing the cafe and ladies' entrance to the hotel, and 2,830 square feet of land. It is all taxed for $80,000. The assessed valuation per foot is $24. Manager Hall leases the building fronting on Washington street, but owns outright the parcel at No. 70 Mason street, taxed for a total of $66,000, and controls the parcel held in the name of Joseph Foster between the latter parcel and the one he has just purchased. The new purchase gives him control of the entire Mason street frontage of the hotel with the exception of 1,031 square feet, owned by John J. Martin at the corner of the alley next to Keith's Theatre. Mr. Hall has said that he intends to put up a large addition to the hotel on the Mason street side.

STRICKEN DEAD ALONE IN SAILBOAT

ONSET, June 12.—Alone in a sailboat on Onset Bay, James A. Smith of Brockton was stricken with paralysis and died before help could reach him.

Mr. Smith, who is seventy-two years old, was a well-known Summer resident of Onset. He had come down from Brockton Saturday evening to put his cottage in order for the arrival of his family this week. After working yesterday morning inside the house he was tempted out by the bright sunlight, and taking a big sailboat went out alone on the bay. Late yesterday afternoon a sailboat was seen running wild before the wind. Several boats started in pursuit, and after a long chase overtook her by the Point Independence shore.

JURY SELECTED FOR FERRO MURDER TRIAL

Carmelo Ferro, charged with shooting and killing Tony Dammillis during a row in South Framingham, April 17, 1910, was to-day put on trial, charged with murder in the first degree, in the East Cambridge court before Judge Hardy. A jury was soon selected and the trial begun. The government alleges that during a row in an Italian boarding house at No. 16 Bishop street, South Framingham, Ferro shot Dammillis, and also shot Raphael Surro. Dammillis died the following day in a hospital from the wounds he received. Surro recovered and, it is said, will be called as a government witness.

Again this afternoon the Red Sox and Tigers will battle at the Huntington avenue grounds. The Sox win of Saturday and the excitement of the game has aroused the baseball fever to the boiling point among the Boston and vicinity fans and another record breaking crowd will pack the grandstands and bleachers.

The second game holds even more attraction than the first. The fans know that the Sox are there with the goods when occasion requires and hope and expect a repetition of the dose of Saturday.

The Red Sox need some victories to make this home record look good. It is folly to wait for Cleveland. The Naps may prove as deceitful as did the St. Louis Browns. The home boys would do well to grab the remaining two from the Tigers and then the Cleveland bunch may be frightened into dropping three or four games here.

The Sunday rest was welcome after the strain of Saturday. Some of the Sox and also some of the visitors journeyed to the beaches and harkened to the roar of the surf, which does not compare in volume to the noise a big gang of fans can make. Detroit has a river and a lake, but neither of them is any relation to the ocean, and

The pastor gave a very plain talk to the women of his congregation.

Mrs. John S. Kennedy has given $50,000 to the seminary for a new administration building. C. M. Bailey of Winthrop, Me., has endowed the seminary with $25,000, and Mrs. A. F. Schauffler of New York has offered the boys' school $75,000 for a library.

MAINE FARMER CHARGED WITH KILLING WIFE

FARMINGTON, Me., June 12.—The coroner's jury, after an inquest into the death of the wife of Marshall Taylor, a hunter and guide of Fremont, held at the town of Strong, to-day returned this verdict:

"We find that Mrs. Marshall Taylor came to her death about May 16 by the hand of person or persons unknown by repeated blows on the head with some blunt instrument, which crushed her skull."

SUSPECT'S HOUSEKEEPER TO BE WITNESS.

Taylor, who is in jail here, charged with the crime, will probably be arraigned in the municipal court tomorrow. Miss Gilda Searles, the comely young housekeeper whom Taylor engaged immediately after the death of his wife, and who is also held by the police, will be used as a witness.

The authorities hope that the young woman may know something that will be of benefit in fixing the crime on the murderer.

The State will attempt to show that Taylor dug a grave for his wife in the front yard at first, but was scared away by a mail carrier and then hid the body in the earth where it was found.

Evidence was found to-day which convinces Sheriff Small that Taylor killed his wife and proposed to bury her and then plant flowers on her grave. In this way, it is suggested, he would divert the attention of any one who might make a search from the grave.

It is believed by the authorities that Taylor tired of his wife and longed for the society of a younger woman. It is thought he attacked her in the back yard, knocked her down and beat her until she was lifeless.

This was done, it will be alleged, after he had made inquiries that led to Miss Gilda Searles to go to his home as housekeeper.

Held as Suspect.

Taylor and Miss Searles are in prison here. He has not talked about the case except to declare that he knew nothing about the crime. Miss Searles is held as a witness, merely. It is not believed that she knew anything about the murder.

The authorities believe that the crime was planned for weeks. Taylor's trouble with his wife, it is believed, started when she found that he was corresponding with a number of other women and passing himself off as an unmarried man. Then the County officials who have looked into the case believe he set out to get rid of his wife.

Woman Sister of Murderer.

An odd feature of the case is that Gilda Searles is the sister of Harvey A. Searles of Livermore, who is now serving a life sentence for the murder of his wife. She herself has been in trouble with the law, having been prosecuted on a bigamy charge some time ago. But she protests almost hysterically that she did not know that anything was wrong when she consented to enter Taylor's employ.

Taylor had in his possession a note purporting to have been written by his wife in which she informed him that she was through with him for good and all and that he had better not try to find her. Sheriff Small of Farmington and Deputy Sheriff Richardson said to-day that handwriting experts would be called upon to examine this note and also a letter to the register of deeds. This letter, signed "Mrs. Etta Taylor," asked that the record of the transfer of the farm to her by Taylor be erased as it was her purpose to sell it.

It was on May 12 that Mrs. Taylor was last seen alive. She went to the home of a neighbor, Reuben Huff, and bought some beans for Taylor to plant.

Taylor says he doesn't remember the exact day of her "disappearance." The police believe it was May 12 or May 13.

"I reckon it might have been," Taylor told the officers when they questioned him. "I recollect it was a good day for fishing. I went away early in the morning and stayed away all day.

Exhibits Letter She Left.

"When I got home it was most 11 o'clock. The house was locked up and dark. I got in through a window and found Ettie had gone. I wasn't suprised much, because she always said she would. She left a letter."

This letter is now in Sheriff Richardson's possession. It reads:

"I have left you for good. All I ask of you is to keep clear of me. I shall never trouble you again in no way, shape or manner. If you come near me you will have to have help to get away.

"ETTA."

At last one of Taylor's women neighbors wrote to County Attorney Cyrus M. Blanchard of Wilton that Mrs. Taylor had disappeared and that she believed it was time for some one to ask Taylor a few questions.

Mr. Blanchard turned the communication over to Sheriff Small. The latter drove over from Farmington with Dupty Richardson, one day late in May, and presented himself at the Taylor home.

Letter Comes to Registry.

Taylor was indignant. He declared Mrs. Taylor had left him and that it was nobody's business but his own.

"Did you tell your neighbors?" asked Small.

"No, it wasn't none of their business," Taylor answered angrily.

"Why didn't you tell the police?"

"Well, if she wanted to go, I thought she might as well."

Pressed still further, Taylor said his

LYNN WOMAN HELD PRISONER

Lynn police are investigating the strange story told them by Miss Mary Doherty of Boston, who was taken early today from the fourth floor of a leather establishment where she said she had been a prisoner since Saturday afternoon.

The woman was famished and suffering from exposure when she was seen by passers-by on their way to work. She was lying on the fire escape outside the fourth floor of the morocco factory of A. V. Martin on Market street. The police were notified and Patrolmen Curry and Flanagan were sent to the factory.

They entered the building and making their way to the fourth floor found the woman lying on the fire escape, feebly groaning and almost unable at first to reply coherently to their inquiries.

She was taken to the police station in an ambulance and told the officials that she was thirty years old and had gone to the factory on Saturday afternoon looking for work.

SIX INJURED IN "L" COLLAPSE

Six laborers were injured, one of them seriously, when a staging upon which they were at work underneath the elevated structure at the North Station collapsed early to-day and fell to the ground, fifteen feet below, carrying with it a large quantity of cement.

Tony Moscullo was taken to the Relief Hospital, where it is believed that he had sustained internal injuries. His condition is serious. The other men were badly shaken up, but were able to go to their homes unassisted.

The accident created considerable excitement in the vicinity of the North Station and was witnessed by scores of commuters coming out from the station on their way to work.

The staging upon which the men were at work laying cement against the elevated structure was slung by means of ropes from the structure directly over the surface car loop. The men narrowly escaped being run over by a surface car which rounded the loop just as the accident occurred.

WOMAN FOUND SLAIN; BODY WAS BURIED IN BACK-YARD OF HOME

wife had often said she would go away from him. Asked if he had any idea where she had gone, he said he supposed she was staying with some of her relatives. He gave the officers the names of some of these, and they finally left him.

Subsequently they got in communication with all the relatives of Mrs. Taylor whose names Taylor had given them. None of them had seen anything of Mrs. Taylor, which was natural enough under the circumstances, and that ended that.

Up to this time there had been nothing beyond the suspicions of Taylor's neighbors to hint at any crime. A few days ago, however, Sheriff Small received word that a letter which purported to be signed by Mrs. Taylor had ben received at the registry of deeds.

Investigating this, they learned that some months ago Taylor had transferred all his property into his wife's name, presumably because of a mix-up in the correspondence he carried on through a matrimonial agency, which threatened to involve him in litigation.

In this letter the writer asked that the record of the transfer be erased, as "she" intended to sell the property.

Sheriff Small drove over to Freeman again yesterday and questioned Taylor further. He learned no more than he already knew, but he decided he would make a search of the Taylor farm and the woods.

A party of twenty-five of Taylor's neighbors volunteered and started out. Taylor became angry and swore at what he declared was an invasion of his rights.

Farmer Finds the Grave.

Silas Durham, a farmer, came upon the heap of brush.

He kicked them to one side, and saw as he suspected, that there was loose, newly turned soil beneath. Durham called Sheriff Small.

Throwing the brush to one side, they left bare an area of new turned soil that was several yards square. Durham and others began to dig, with their hands and sticks. They were hampered by large stones they found mixed with the loam, but it was only a matter of a few minutes before they knew for a certainty a human body had been buried there.

Working more carefully, they cleared the body from the dirt.

"It's Mrs. Taylor. It's Mrs. Taylor," Durham cried excitedly.

Sheriff Small looked at the body, however, and saw it had been in the ground so long that identification might be difficult.

"Tell Taylor to come out," he said.

Taylor had watched the whole proceedings from the kitchen window. He slouched out now without any hesitation. He looked down at the body of his wife and said, without the slightest trace of emotion of any kind: "That's Effie all right."

The back of the head was crushed out of shape and decomposition had advanced far.

Taylor stood around until Sheriff Small had ordered that Coroner R. P. Adams of this town and also County Attorney Blanchard be notified. Then he slouched alongside of the sheriff, back into the house.

"What's happend?" the Searles woman asked them fearfully.

"We've found Mrs. Taylor's body," said the sheriff.

Woman Breaks Down.

She began to sob hysterically, while her lips tried to form a question. "What was it?" she gasped, finally.

"Looks like murder," the sheriff said, briefly.

"My God, my God," shrieked the woman, over and over again. "I didn't know anything about it. I didn't know anything about it," she protested.

Taylor sat by the stove, calmly filling his pipe. This finished, he scratched a match, lit the pipe and puffed away.

Later Drs. G. L. Pratt of Farmington and C. W. Bell of Strong arrived, and proceeded to make an autopsy. The body was brought in from the yard, where it had been covered with a blanket, and laid in the bedroom.

At the close of the examination the physicians said that in their opinion the wound was caused either by a blow from and ax or by a bullet from a weapon held close to the head.

A search of the Taylor home and its vicinity was made, but it failed to disclose any weapon which might have been used.

Coroner Adams, upon his arrival, picked the jury to sit at the inquest. There are six members, all Freeman farmers and all members of the searching party.

They are Orrin Brackley, Jerry M. Burbank, Eugene Sedgeley, H. E. Mayo and Lewis Brackley.

It is possible the body was not buried until a few days ago. Sheriff Small was given information this afternoon which leads him to believe this may be the case.

One day last week the rural free delivery mail carrier, as he drove past the Taylor farm, saw Taylor at work in the garden. He drew his horse to a standstill and saw Taylor was apparently digging a long, narrow trench.

"Are You Digging a Grave?"

"What you doing? Digging a grave?" he asked, jokingly.

Taylor turned, shouted a gruff "No" and proceeded.

When the letter carrier drove back into the village he repeated the incident. The next time he drove past the Taylor home, he looked at the garden and saw the trench had been filled in and that pansies were growing over it.

Taylor is thirty-six years old. The neighbors say he is peculiar.

The sheriff says he has a mania for writing women with those addresses he has become acquainted through the matrimonial agencies to which he subscribes, and that he has written hundreds of these women during the last few years.

He is not a farmer, as the Taylor farm, with its abandoned air, attests. He fishes, hunts and guides.

The murdered woman was what her Freeman neighbors call the "marrying kind." Taylor was her fourth husband. Of the other three, two died and one she divorced. She and Taylor were married seven years ago. She was forty-one years old.

The Searles woman has lived in many towns. She has also been unfortunate. She married a man named Harry Kilgore a few years ago and later both he and she were arrested for bigamy. He was convicted and given a two-year sentence at Thomaston; she was acquitted.

Seeks Housekeeper Early.

Taylor and his wife quarreled frequently throughout their married life. This was due to a large extent to Taylor's penchant for writing to women, which his wife soon discovered.

The officers believed at first Taylor had become acquainted with the Searles woman through his correspondence, but this is disproved by a later development.

A few days before Mrs. Taylor disappeared Taylor met John Stebbins of Salem in that town.

"My wife is going to leave me and I expect I will have to get a housekeeper. Do you know of anyone I could get?" Taylor said to Stebbins.

Stebbins considered the matter and told Taylor he thought Miss Searles might be willing to come.

Taylor apparently returned to his home and wrote Miss Searles about waiting for his wife to "leave home." Miss Searles, who had one experience with a married man, wrote back that she would come if she was sure it was legal for her to do so.

When Taylor received her reply he wrote Elmer Richards, an attorney in this town, inquiring whether it was legal for an unmarried woman to keep house for a married man whose wife had left him. Richards replied that it was, and this satisfied Miss Searles.

Mrs. Taylor was Etta Lambkins of Livermore. The first time she married it was a man named Thurlow, who lived and died in Livermore Falls. She had a son by this marriage, Elmer, now thirteen years old, who now lives with his uncle, H. E. Brockett, at Salem.

Stephen Wing was her second husband. She was separated from him by divorce, and she soon after married Lyman Harwood, who died in Freeman about nine years ago. She has two sisters, Mrs. Oscar Patterson of Atley, Me., and Mrs. May Berry, of Fayette, Me.

NEW SEARCH IN MURDER BARGE

Armed with some new information that they will expect will aid them in solving the mystery of the murder of Captain Charles D. Wyman of the coal barge Glendower, Frederick P. Schmitt, special agent of the government, and others, went to the barge, which lies off Fort Warren, to-day, and made a careful search of the boat.

Mr. Schmidt was accompanied by Medical Examiner Magrath. The barge was examined carefully for marks of the crime. An attempt was made to trace the murderer by these marks to his bunk. The medical examiner took powerful microscopes with him, and every article on the boat was one over for evidence of the crime.

It was believed that one of the three prisoners, members of the crew, who are in the East Cambridge Jail, gave some information that led to to-day's search.

The prisoners are William De Graff, the cook; Antonio Priskich, the donkeyman, and William Nelson, the deckhand. Suspicion is directed at De Graff. He is said to have had exclusive opportunity, yet it is not known at present whether Priskich or Nelson could have been on the cabin deck when Captain Wyman was beaten to death.

One theory held by the inspectors is that one of the suspects became temporarily crazed. A peculiar feature of the case is that all of the men insist that they know of no tragedy. They were the only ones aboard besides the victim.

The crime was committed some time between the hours of 12 o'clock and 5 in the afternoon and probably before 3 o'clock.

The captain was not seen alive, the men say, after he retired to his cabin at the conclusion of his dinner. Priskich was at the wheel from 2 until 5 o'clock when Nelson is supposed to have been sleeping in his bunk back of the wheelhouse.

De Graff Near the Cabin.

De Graff, the cook, was in the galley in the rear of the captain's cabin and he was the only one of the three that could have reached the captain without being seen from the wheelhouse. In order for Nelson to reach the deck he would have been obliged to pass Priskich at the wheel. The only way for Priskich to have been below in the captain's cabin at the time when the latter is supposed to have met his death, was to have "staked" the wheel while he clambered down the ladder, committed the crime and climbed back to the wheelhouse before the barge had gone too far off its course to be noticeable to those on the other two barges or the tug which was towing them.

The lack of motive is proving a serious drawback to the Federal officers working upon the case, and up to the present evidence against the arrested men is mostly circumstantial. The finding of the blood-stained trousers in the cook's galley leads the police to believe that De Graff murdered the captain, and it is probable that when the three members of the crew are arraigned, he alone will be charged with the crime and that Nelson and Priskich will be held as witnesses for the government.

Say There Was No Row.

As far as it is known, De Graff never met Captain Wyman until he shipped with him at Newburyport on May 17. Each of the three men under arrest says that everything was harmonious on board the barge and spoke in the highest terms of the murdered captain. The crew say the food was good and there was lots of it, but De Graff admited that the captain had often told him he was suffering from pains in the stomach, probably due to indigestion. De Graff declared his cooking had nothing to do with the captain's ailment, but that the latter had a habit of eating cheese, beans, bananas and other foods in his cabin between meals.

Medical Examiner Magrath has performed an autopsy, the result of which will probably be made known to-day. Arrangements are being made by Captain Wyman's relatives for the funeral. It is said the body will be removed to-day from the North Grove street morgue to the home of Edwin Wyman, half brother of the dead captain, at No. 66 Saragota street, East Boston. It will later be sent back to Parker Head, Me., for burial.

Mrs. Isadore Wyman, widow of the murdered man, is grief stricken. She received the sad news while visiting friends in Bangor, Me., and hurried to this city, arriving here late yesterday afternoon.

That Captain Wyman was beaten to death with a marlinspike is almost certain, despite the fact that no weapon bearing blood stains was found on the barge. This much was established through the autopsy. There were seventeen distinct wounds on the back of the skull and left side of the face and in several of these the round end of a marlinspike just fits. The weapon used by the murderer is believed to have been thrown overboard, and it is also thought it was the murderer's intention to throw the body of the captain into the water, but the fear of being caught in the act if he attempted it in daylight probably restrained him.

It was reported that one of the prisoners had made a confession, but this is emphatically denied by Special Agent Schmidt.

SEEKS AID IN HUNT FOR LOST HUSBAND

Mrs. Mary White, ill and penniless, has appealed to the police to aid her in finding her husband, William E. White, who disappeared on Saturday, June 3, without leaving word with his employer or wife. Nothing has been seen of him since. Up to the time of his disappearance he was employed in a Boston restaurant. Mrs. White fears that some accident has happened to her husband. She has reported the case to the police.

"I don't know what could have happened to my husband," she said to-day. "We have always lived happily together. We have never quarreled. I fear that something terrible has happened to him. My husband left home Saturday morning, June 3. He told me to meet him at the corner of Washington and Essex streets at 3 o'clock, when he was through work and we would lunch together. I was there at the appointed time, but he did not appear."

White is five feet three and one-half inches in height and weight 142 pounds. His face is unusually pallid. He wore a black suit, black shoes and stockings and a black derby hat.

$25,000 BAIL IN STOKES CASE

To one of the police detectives who visited the hospital, Mr. Stokes said:

"I feel I was mighty lucky to escape out of this affair with my life. What the girls say about me does not bother, but in view of all that has happened I am going to see this fight to the finish."

Girls Ready to Fight Too.

With the support of the relatives and several mysterious friends, Miss Graham and Miss Conrad have announced a similar determination to fight. Their attorneys, Robert M. Moore of No. 60 Wall street, and Herman Phillips of No. 1482 Broadway announce that they are prepared to furnish any amount of bail demanded by the court.

Lawyer Phillips made a hurried trip away from the city Saturday night, but returned yesterday. He declined to discuss his absence, but it was generally understood that he had visited a nearby town to meet one of the wealthy friends who volunteered to finance the defence of Miss Conrad. The name of this man has been as carefully concealed as have many of the circumstances surrounding the shooting.

All efforts to locate the wealthy Western Senator, who is known to have befriended Miss Graham during her recent visit to Europe, have been without success. He is said to have been in communication with the young woman's attorney, but his exact whereabouts are unknown.

Despatches from Washington tell that the Senator is in New York. Business associates here say he is in the West. But inquiry in the West resulted in the reply that he was in the East.

In any event, this Senator is due to be in Washington early this week to attend several important committee meetings. His friends say, however, that if he fails to show they will not be surprised. The Senator is married.

Candy and Flowers Sent In.

All arrangements having been completed Saturday for to-day's hearing, the attorneys for the young women did not call at the West Fifty-third street prison yesterday. There were several boxes of candy and two bunches of flowers delivered by messengers, but no cards accompanied these remembrances.

The police officers in charge of the jail were responsible for the statement that the girls are being afforded much amusement by trying to establish the identity of their friends who prefer at this time to send gifts of flowers and candy anonymously.

"Do they eat the regulation prison food?" asked the reporter.

"Not on your life," was the reply. "No jail grub for those girls. They have not given any trouble, but they send out to a fashionable restaurant for everything in the eating line. There is no objection to that since they have all the money they need with which to pay for extras.

ALLEGED JEWELRY THIEF IS CAUGHT

Traced by a letter sent to the woman from whom he is alleged to have stolen jewelry valued at $600, William H. Partridge, formerly a lodger at No. 1,290 Washington street, South End, is under arrest in New York. Inspector Wolf leaves today to bring him back to answer to an indictment charging larceny of $600 worth of jewelry from Mrs. Margaret R. Sullivan. On June 3 last, while Mrs. Sullivan was watching a fire, she alleges that Partridge took the jewelry from a bureau drawer and vanished. Several days later Mrs. Sullivan received a letter from Partridge, according to Mrs. Sullivan, saying that he was sorry that he stole the jewelry, and that he hoped to make restitution at some later date. In the letter were the pawn tickets.

CHURCH OBSERVES 25TH ANNIVERSARY

A two-days' celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Third Universalist Church of Somerville was begun yesterday with special services, morning and evening. The celebration closes to-night with a social at the church under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. The Rev. Harry A. Hersey, pastor of the church, delivered the anniversary sermon. "If the trusts would trust in God; if the 'combines' would not leave Jesus Christ out of the combination; if the monopolies were themselves monopolized by the spirit which was in Jesus, the curse would be turned into a blessing," he said.

BULL CONTEST IS CONTINUED

ALFRED, Me., June 12.—There will be no settlement out of court of the Bull will case. This was stated, with emphasis, by counsel for both the contestant and the respondents to-day.

Sherman L. Whipple, counsel for Mrs. Olea Bull Vaughn, the contestant of her mother's will, said:

"There will be no settlement except the court settlement. I do not know how the story started, but it is wholly unfounded."

The case goes on to-day at 2.

Charles K. Cobb, counsel for the respondents, said:

"There is nothing in the report. The case will continue to its end."

It is expected that Mrs. Edith Swananader of Brooklyn, N. Y., will take the stand when the contest is resumed to-morrow.

The presumption is that she will give new testimony regarding the relations which existed between Miss Margaret Noble, the "Sister Nivedita," who has already figured so prominently in the case, and Mrs. Ole Bull, the testatrix, during the last days of the latter's life.

Mrs. Swananader is the mother of Miss Siri E. Swananader, the Brooklyn school teacher who testified last week that "Sister Nivedita" gave Mrs. Bull a mysterious Hindu medicine which had a bad effect on her, against the physician's orders, and in spite of Mrs. Bull's protests.

Mrs. Swananader is in a position to present as sensational testimony as did her daughter. She will be used also, in all probability, to bring out the attitude of Mrs. Bull toward her daughter, Mrs. Olea Bull Vaughan, and she will be questioned in regard to the position of "Sister Nivedita" in the efforts the daughter made to see her mother.

Miss Swananader testified that during her stay at Brooklyn, Mrs. Bull became much attached to her and her mother and that she intended to send her to Radcliffe. It has been hinted that Mrs. Swananader learned a great deal from Mrs. Bull's own lips while she was acting as hostess.

TWO DIE IN CHAIR WITHIN 10 MINUTES

OSSINING, N. Y., June 12.—In a double execution, lasting only ten minutes, two murderers paid the penalties for their crimes with their own lives in Sing Sing Prison to-day. They were Frederick Gebhardt, convicted for the murder of Anna Luther near East Islip, Long Island, in April, 1909, and Thomas Barnes, who shot John Leonard to death at his home, No. 266 South Fourth street, Brooklyn.

SMALL INVESTORS FOR CANAL BONDS

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The government's $50,000,000 Panama canal loan will probably be taken in the main by small investors. Although the bids will not be opened until next Saturday, more than 900 sealed proposals have been received at the Treasury Department. They came from all sections of the country, and the loan seems to be well understood by the public.

CONSUELO, DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH, COMING TO AMERICA FOR GOOD

LONDON, June 12.—The news that Marble House at Newport, once the home of the W. K. Vanderbilts and now owned by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, is being prepared for occupancy this Summer gives her friends here the belief that the Duchess of Marlborough is to quit England and make her permanent home in her native country.

There is ample ground for this belief, and especially that the coming coronation ceremonies will advertise and emphasize the fact that the American Duchess is excluded from the court of King George and Queen Mary, though at the last coronation she was one of the canopy bearers for the Queen, but in the coming ceremonies, she will have absolutely no part.

The irony of fate is expressed in the solitary fight of the Duchess to maintain her dignity in view of the deluge of humiliation. Good friends have rushed to the side of the American, but the aid is futile against the influence of Buckingham Palace; and the Duchess' own palace—Sunderland House—is a social mausoleum in these days of royal disfavor.

Has Fallen in Royal Favor.

Probably if the Duchess were not compelled to live in England for the sake of her children she would be only too happy to flee forever a country where she has been pilloried for the sake of etiquette. A few years ago she was on the crest of things, a canopy bearer at the coronation of King Edward, a hostess of exceeding fashion, a leader of the smartest set. Now Her Grace is scarcely on the fringe. She can never recover from the royal blight. Like Cardinal Wolsey, she has "fallen; never to rise again."

Almost from the day of her wedding in St. Thomas' church, New York, the millionaire's daughter has endured the snubs of an indifferent husband. Most courageously she made the best of the situation and brought her two sons into the world without announcing her domestic sorrow. Season after season she was able to show the world how to live behind the mask, but a few years ago at Blenheim the American woman's patience reached its end. A fascinating American girl, long a close friend of the Marlboroughs, was staying at the magnificent country seat with the Duke and Duchess. The housekeeper gave in her notice to the Duchess and explained her cause for renouncing so pleasant a position.

The Duchess cabled to her father, William K. Vanderbilt, then in France, and on a sultry August day there was a meeting in London to discuss the affair. Mr. Vanderbilt insisted on a separation, but the Duchess was only too willing to make a further attempt to palliate the Duke's offences. It was the mildness and sweetness of his wife which goaded the Duke, and finally the Duchess tried other tactics. Like the heroine in the comedy, the Duchess beamed on the various charming cousins of Marlborough and apparently gave no heed to her husband's comings and goings.

Insulted by the Duke.

It was at this point that the Duke did the unspeakable things which cost him so many friends. The Duchess is very deaf, and the Duke would forever make scathing remarks while she was present and unable to defend herself. Blenheim developed into a hot bed of ill temper and the ducal quarrel broke down the health of the Duchess of Marlborough, lashed to fury and her pride aroused, made the statement which so unjustly gave her husband the whip hand. She said: "You don't think I'm attractive. I may not be to you, but to your cousins—Freddie Guest, for instance."

This little outburst of hurt vanity was repeated by the Duke to his aunt, Lady Sarah Wilson, who never had liked the Duchess of Marlborough or the mother, Mrs. Oliver Belmont. The Marlborough scandal was repeated to King Edward, whose efforts to avoid a public washing of linen were bound to be heeded. He tactfully requested the Duchess to avoid litigation, and she consented for a while.

It may have been the old rancor; it may have been the Duchess's disobedience in putting her case into lawyers's hands, but it is more likely that when Lady Sarah repeated to he King the boast of the Duchess that he turned against the American girl. His sympathy was withdrawn. He was fed up on the thrilling Marlborough case. He did not want the reputation of Anglo-American marriages besmirched.

Snubbed by the King.

There was a meeting of the Knights of the Garter at Windsor Castle, and the Duke of Marlborough was expected at the banquet. Then King Edward did the one thing which showed a lack of tact. Her Grace was not invited. In the public lists the Duke of Marlborough's name stood without his spouse. This cut direct caused a furore. It was the cruelty of the blow that determined precedent to the Duchess's disadvantage. The snub of Edward barred her from court for all time.

The American Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid continue to be kind to her Grace and the Duchess of Roxburgh and the Countess of Granard are equally considerate, but so long as the gates of the palace are closed to this Duchess, her position is one of extreme humiliation.

URGE VAGRANTS BE COLONIZED

The lenient attitude of the average American toward the man who buys his way into the United States Senate, as well as toward the ordinary pickpocket, was rebuked out-today by the National Charities and Corrections conference here as the cause of riots and lynchings, by Mrs. Ophelia L. Amigh, superintendent of the State Training School for Girls of Illinois.

Robert W. Hebberd, secretary of the State Board of Charities of New York, proposed the colonization of vagrants as a means of ridding the country of its plague of tramps, and James F. Jackson told how successful the city of Cleveland has been in applying this theory by removing the workhouse to the country and putting its inmates to work at farming.

People Too Lenient.

Issue was taken with some of the other speakers by Mrs. Amigh, who said that she is opposed to the plan of permanently segregating all of the defective criminals of the country.

"I believe," she said, "that many an irresponsible can be made to understand that there is a right and wrong side to every question, and while it may take a long time to make this idea penetrate the defective mind, it is well worth trying and then, under good supervision, they may become useful in the world.

"I think it is more humane to train and educate to usefulness and activity even though it may take more time and patience and strenuous measures than would be necessary to allow this stupid class to sit passively down and allow the world to pass by and gaze unthinkingly on their untaught inactivity. For those possessed of mental proportions to allow them to plan all kinds of wrong doing from wrecking a bank to buying their way into the senate, committing crime against person and property, down to the pickpocket, the world at large is inclined to be too lenient. And from this leniency spring riots and lynch law which look and sound bad for our United States.

Problem of Vagrants.

"The question of vagrancy," Mr. Hebberd said, "has thus far been caressed and inadequately dealt with in this country. Despite the experience of a number of European countries and their success in dealing with this problem, we are just awakening to a realizing sense of its importance. Vagrancy has long existed in this country to an alarming extent, and is in an acute stage in some of our cities, notably in New York, where it seems impossible to stem the advancing tide. The cheap lodging house evil greatly helps to foster it and the magistrates are in most cases not alive to its importance. That much of it is due to enfeebled mentality requiring custodial care seems to be beyond question. But how to secure such care is really the problem.

"The only feasible plan, and this plan is one that has worked successfully in Switzerland, Germany, Holland and Belgium, is that of the industrial colony to which vagrants can, upon conviction, be committed for long terms.

"To care for vagrants in farm colonies where they can be made to contribute to some extent, at least, to their own support seems to be a most desirable plan. Those who are willing to work will be received and cared for, while those who fear work will receive to other parts where they are more welcome. The State that is foremost in this respect will have the advantage.

The Farm Policy.

"It is estimated that the care of vagrants and tramps in penitentiaries, jails and workhouses in New York State, where they are kept practically in idleness, cost at least $2,000,000 annually, much of which could be saved under the industrial or farm colony system properly administered.

The experiment of the city of Cleveland was explained by James F. Jackson, general superintendent of charities and correction of that city.

"The farm policy," said the speaker, "is to give to each man the largest degree of liberty consistent with the well-being of others. The ultimate purpose is to employ as many of the trusties as possible who can be trusted, and to employ out-doors within the walls all the remainder except those whose conduct imperatively demands supervision.

"No key is turned on those men during the day. The night guard and the locked door are more to remove temptation than to prevent escape. Prisoners arrive a typical Bridewell company, drunken, dirty, diseased and discouraged; they go away bronzed, accustomed to work with a new determination and a new grip. Of course, some return. We do not pretend to be proof against all the wiles of the world, the flesh, and the devil.

"The farm prison is no panacea, nor does the country present an alchemy which removes then into angels. This be amply attested by the record of most diabolical crimes committed by countryfied men who would not know a skyscraper from a subway. The country is the place for the prisoner for the very obvious reason that it affords plenty of light, pure air, a variety of good food, and opportunity for productive occupation for the prisoners."

BIG PROGRAM FOR BUNKER HILL DAY

Charlestown is putting on its holiday dress and getting ready to celebrate the 136th anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill in true patriotic style.

There will be parades, music, oratory, athletic games, baseball, refreshments—in fact there will be something doing every minute from the time that the toastmaster of the Catholic Literary Union banquet opens the festivities on the night before until the last fireworks are exploded on the Sullivan Square playground, officially closing Charlestown's big day.

Councillors Daniel J. McDonald and Timothy J. Buckley have the celebration in charge and in the apportionment of the $5,500 allowed by the city for the celebration, they have endeavored to arrange a program that will prove enjoyable for every resident of the district and to the thousands from all over the city who will be present.

An old time feature that the children always looked forward to for months will be revived for the morning program. The Horribles parade, caricaturing popular fads and fancies and depicting humorous scenes of all kinds, is expected to be the best thing on the children's program.

Horribles a Feature.

Chief Marshal McVarish has received the entries of over twenty-five clubs for the Horibles parade. Some of the subjects and the clubs which will present them are:

Men of To-morrow, by the Sailors' Haven.

Yama Yama Kids, by the Vincent Association of South Boston.

That Awful Band, by the Monument Athletic Club.

Western Spectacle, by the Tammany Club of Chelsea.

Suffragettes, by the B. O. Churchill Associates.

Rebetown Fire Department, by the Jackson Club.

Teddy's Return from Africa," by the Funtastic Club.

Evolution of New England, by the James H. Hreenan Club. This is the feature that won the $5,000 prize presented for the best feature at the Elks' convention in Detroit last year.

Order of the Serpent, by Ensign Worth Bagley Camp, S. W. V.

Castaways from Crab Island, by the Gray Eagle Associates.

Wilmington Tinware Band, by the Madison-Chestnut clubs.

Owls, by the Charlestown Nest of Owls.

Scenes in Battle Alley, by the K. A. S. Club.

The Union Forever, by the Charlestown Artillery.

Hygeide girls, by the Charlestown Girls' Hygiene Club.

Mixed Pickles, by the Sharon Outing Club.

Women of 1925, by the Kilcott Social Club.

A Little of Everything, by the Hatton Juniors.

Comic characters Seen in the Daily Press, by the Clark Outing Club.

This parade will form at 9:30 a. m. at Bunker Hill and Elm street and will move over the following route: Bunker Hill street to Chelsea, to City square, to Park, to Common, to Winthrop square, to Bartlett, to Elm, to High, to Monument avenue, to Warren, to Thompson square, to Main, to Oak, to Russell, to Pearl, to Bunker Hill, to Elm, where it will disband.

Chief Marshal McVarish has appointed his staff for the parade as follows: Michael H. Finley, Major Mark E. Smith, Stanton H. King, James J. Muller, Jr., Dr. Francis P. Silva, Richard F. Murphy, T. Vernon Bryant, William H. Thomas, Joseph E. Donovan, Dr. W. B. Stacey, General William H. Oakes, William J. Ennis, George T. Horan and Jeremiah F. Cullorden.

St. John Troops Coming.

Cash prizes to the amount of $650 will be awarded the best displays and in addition all organizations parading forty or more men will be allowed $1 per man for expenses. The arrangements for the parade are in the hands of the Charlestown Business Men's Association.

The military and civic parade will be the big feature of the afternoon events. A place of honor in the line will be given the Sixty-second St. John, N. B., Fusiliers, Lieutenant-Colonel James J. McAuley commanding. The regiment will arrive on the morning of the Seventeenth. The Fusiliers will spend three days here, and a great reception has been planned for them. They will come eight companies strong, with both brass and bugle bands, Colonel Leroy Sweezer and officers of the Eighth Regiment, M. V. M. will act as hosts for the visitors.

The Sixty-second St. John Fusiliers were originally raised as the Sixty-second New Brunswick Regiment of Infantry in 1864. They saw field service in 1866 and 1870 and in 1885 furnished the right half battalion to the New Brunswick provincial battalion during the Northwest rebellion. From 1899 to 1901 it furnished the greatest number of men to the South African contingents of any Canadian militia regiment.

The officers in the regiment are: Majors Perley and Frost, Captains McAtthur, Duffield, May and Fleetwood, Lieutenants Clark, Willett, Sturbee, Whetmore, McAvity, Donald, Meggan, Warren, Scott and Keefe. The men will be quartered at the South Armory.

June 15 will be spen at Nantasket and on Monday the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company will entertain the officers at a luncheon. They will depart on Tuesday as the regiment is scheduled to take part in the Coronation exercises in their home town.

John P. Greene is Marshal.

In addition to the visitors, there will be in line on the afternoon parade, The Charlestown Artillery and Cadets, the City Guards, Eighth Massachusetts Regiment, several companies from the Ninth Regiment and Massachusetts Signal Corps, battalion of Coast Artillery from the harbor forts, marines and sailors from the Navy Yard, Charlestown Veteran Firemen's Association, Ensign Worth Bagley, Colonel Fred Bogen and Bunker Hill Camps of the Spanish War Veterans, the John Boyle O'Reilly Guards, Monument Guards, Unity Guards, Montgomery Guards, Grand Guards, Division 37 Military Company, Sons of Veterans and the Charlestown and Dudley High School Cadets.

Mayor Fitzgerald, Congressmen Curley, Murray and Peters, the members of the city government and the district representatives in the Legislature will ride in carriages.

John P. Greene will be chief marshal of the afternoon parade, and his staff will be announced this week.

In the athletic Blue Interest centres in the deciding of the championship of Charlestown. Four clubs have blues on the diamond that are said to be the best that Charlestown can produce. They are the Jackson A. C., the Hillcott A. C., the Charlestown A. C. and the Warren Gym. Besides the championship, they will fight for a $50 purse, and there will also be some fine baseball on the Sullivan square playground.

In the evening there will be a fine display of fireworks on the Sullivan square playground and band concerts at Hayes square and Winthrop square.

The Catholic Literary Union of Charlestown will have the honor of opening the seventeenth celebration with the annual banquet, which will be held at the Waverly House.

The Hayes Square Outing Club will also hold a banquet with some distinguished orators for the post-prandial programme. This event will take place in the Lexington street armory.

Open House to Rule.

No celebration in Charlestown would be complete without the entertaining fakir. They will have their fun on the Sullivan Square playground and License Clerk Casey has already awarded all the desirable spaces. The cane board, African dodger, weight testers, balloon men and other ballyhoo merchants will be on the job from the night before until midnight strikes on the 17th.

Of course the lacrosse will be out on every club house. In addition thousands of residents are planning for open house and liberal entertainment for visitors.

CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

THE BOSTON AMERICAN PROVERB CONTEST is a contest of skill and judgment. Prizes to the amount of $10,000 will be given absolutely free by the Boston American to the winners. Every one living in New England, irrespective of age, is eligible to enter this contest.

Each set of answers must contain only one answer to each picture, but each person is entitled to send in three complete sets of answers.

The answers to the puzzle pictures may be sent in writing in longhand either with pen or pencil; they may be written on the typewriter or may be printed in any manner to suit the fancy of the contestant.

Participation in any other contest now being run or which may be run by the American will not debar any one from entering the contest.

Each contestant or any or all members of the family will be allowed to submit one, two or three sets of answers, but each set must contain only one answer to each picture. Each set will be considered separately, but no contestant can win more than one prize. All employes of the American and their families are absolutely barred from participating in this contest.

In case there are no complete lists of correct answers, prizes will be awarded to the persons submitting the nearest correct soutions. In case of a tie, award will be made on the basis of neatness and exact accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied contestants will receive similar prizes.

Do not send your answers now. Keep them from day to day and at the end of the contest arrange them in numerical order, and then send them in all at one time.

Under no circumstances should contestants begin to send in their answers now, as any answers sent in that way will not be considered.

Time will cut no figure in awarding the prizes. The first answers sent in after the contest closes will stand no better chance of winning a prize than the last answers submitted.

All answers must be delivered at the BOSTON AMERICAN CONTEST HEADQUARTERS, 275 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass., either by mail or in person within the specified time limit. It is contemplated to give contestants ten days to two weeks after the close of the contest to prepare their answers, so that they can be sent in all together at one time.

The American will not be responsible for the receipt of any answers unless sent by registered mail and addressed to "PROVERB CONTEST EDITOR, 275 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass."

In case contestants desire further information they should address their questions to PROVERB CONTEST EDITOR, Boston American, 275 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.

There will be seventy-five puzzle pictures in the series used in the contest. The solutions of these pictures may be sent in on the coupons printed in the Daily and Sunday American, or may be written on separate slips of paper. The use of the coupon is desirable, but not necessary.

The Editor of the PROVERB CONTEST reserves the right to make any change in, or addition to, these conditions that he may deem necessary for properly conducting the contest, and his decision on any question which may arise will be absolutely final.

FIRST PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE U. S. BATTLESHIP MAINE AFTER WATER HAD BEEN PUMPED FROM COFFERDAM

Photograph on the left was taken after water had been pumped from the cofferdam surrounding the battleship in Havana harbor. The engineers in charge of raising the battleship are sure that the water will be completely emptied in ten days and hulk of the ship exposed to view. The photograph on the right shows the barnacle encrusted sides of the warship which are seen for the first time since the disaster. Photographs copyrighted by the International News Service.

MACKEREL HERE FOR EVERYBODY

After two years of dismal failure in mackerel fisheries, Boston to-day can have, and probably will have during the Summer, all the mackerel it wants at the low price of twenty-five cents apiece.

On T Wharf to-day 102,000 pounds of fresh mackerel and 700 pounds of salt mackerel were landed. This makes the largest number of mackerel brought to this port in any one day or week in years.

The entire shipment has been sold for a price ranging from 16½ to 17 cents, the cheapest on T Wharf since 1908. The vessels arrived were the Monarch with 35,000 pounds, Mary E. Harty, 24,000, Slade-Gorton, 20,000, and the Saladin with 23,000 pounds.

B. & M. CUT IS STAMPED O. K.

The Railroad Commissioners reported to the House of Representatives to-day that the Boston & Maine Railroad is justified in cutting down the passenger service because of the improvements made. When the Summer schedule goes into effect on June 26 the commissioners promise to look that over and make such adjustments as are needed. In the course of their report the commissioners say:

"In view of the improvements in passenger train service, especially by express, and particularly upon the Portland division (comprising the old Eastern and Western divisions) and the further fact that more or less of the withdrawals of local service to this date are in territory served by other carriers, the board is of the opinion that the withdrawals, taken as a whole, in connection with the improvements made, are justified.

"In making this finding, we distinctly wish the House of Representatives to understand that we are not adjudicating any specific cases, but are speaking of the situation as a whole. We do not conceive it our duty under the order to pass upon specific trains or train schedules so withdrawn.

"With respect to any proposed changes of existing passenger train schedules to be effective upon the installation of the Summer schedule, we are not sufficiently informed by the Boston & Maine Railroad, in view of the fact that the schedule is not yet completed, as to the specific proposed withdrawals, changes of running time and station stops; and we are therefore unable, within the time limit of the order, to make any finding with respect to the justification of such proposed decreases as a whole. Any changes if made, either by withdrawal or rearrangement of running time or station stops can be adjudicated by the board when effective, upon the merits of specific cases."

HELD ON CHARGE OF ABDUCTING GIRL

WORCESTER, June 12.—Padlo Razzini, twenty years old, living at No. 74 Central street, was held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury to-day on a charge of abducting fourteen-year-old Annita Ficelo of No. 377 Shrewsbury street. According to the police, the girl and Razzini went to Boston. Detective Joseph L. Ferarri was sent to investigate, and questioned Razzini in English, asking him to interpret the answers to girl to some questions. Razzini, not knowing that the detective spoke Italian, it is charged, misinterpreted the answers and consequently was placed under arrest. Razzini was acquitted on a charge of murder last February after he had fled to Ohio and was extradited.

$1,000,000 FOR MADAME SARAH

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The advance guard of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt has got back to town, after leading the famous French actress over the greater part of the United States and Canada. Some of the arrangements for her reception here next week were completed to-day. Of the formal receptions, of which there probably will be many, one of the most elaborate will be given at the Players' Club on Tuesday afternoon, June 20, at which Mme. Bernhardt will meet the members of the club. The invitation was extended by John Drew, as President, and Mme. Bernhardt, through her manager, has accepted.

Bernhardt's tour this year has been remarkable even for her, according to those who have come ahead. She opened her American season in Chicago on Oct. 28, and will end in New York on June 21, when she will sail for France. She then will have covered about 25,000 miles and will have played 285 performances in 238 days, appearing in 103 different American cities. William F. Connor, her manager, said to-day that the gross receipts of the tour would be nearly $1,000,000.

"She has shown herself even more wonderful than ever before," said one of the advance guard. "She has been indefatigable during the whole tour. She has not only played almost continuously, but has taken time and energy to go on excursions, visit the steel works at Homestead, Penn., for example, an outing that kept her up all night; go sleighing on the St. Lawrence at Montreal with the thermometer at 23 degrees below zero; visit the military camp at San Antonio, and pay a call at Juarez just before the Mexican city was attacked by the revolutionists."

TELLS MT. HOLYOKE GIRLS WAY TO GO

SOUTH HADLEY, June 12.—Advice on the way they should go, and of the paths in life which they should follow, were given to the members of the graduating class of Mt. Holyoke College by Robert E. Spear of New York, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Missions, in the college seventy-first baccalaureate exercises. Taking his text from Revelation, the speaker told the young lady graduates that in entering the great open door which lies before them, they are blessed with the inheritance of charity, ideas, equipment and education, which gives them a great opportunity for service.

POSTOFFICE CLERK ACCUSED OF THEFT

BEVERLY, June 12.—Leroy B. Foster, a clerk in the local postoffice, was arrested to-day by Inspector Ruhl, charged with stealing $3 from a letter addressed to the George P. Browne & Company. The firm for some time have been missing letters, investigation by the postoffice authorities led to the arrest of Foston. Foster received a salary of $1,000 a year, and had been recommended by Postmaster Norwood for an increase of $100. Foster is the son of Isacher Foster, and lives at Beverly Cove. He was taken to Boston, where he was arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes.

MUST TAKE PLEDGE OR GO TO CHURCH

CORDELE, Ga., June 12.—Disgusted by the action of Mayor Derris in announcing that all white persons convicted of drunkenness must either accompany him to church for ten consecutive Sundays or serve thirty days on the streets, chronic drinkers are taking the pledge or getting out of town.

City Hall Notes

The little act of forgetfulness in turning off the water of a resident of Dorchester after he had paid his bill may cost the city $50. The tenant was without water for one day and he has filed a claim with the City Council for $50 damages as a result.

Mayor Fitzgerald left on the 1:25 p. m. train for Holyoke to-day to attend the annual meeting of the Mayors' Club. He was on the job at City Hall early to-day despite his strenuous day in Dorchester on Saturday.

Commissioner Rourke will submit the result of his investigaions and study of the refuse bids to the City Council at to-morrow's meeting. He said to-day that he would answer the Chamber of Commerce and Finance Commission letters on the subject at the same time.

Lincoln Steffens, the well-known student of municipal problems, will be one of the Chamber of Commerce tourists. The Mayor will endeavor to learn from him just why his article on Boston was never made public.

Work of Raising Battleship Maine Nears Completion at Havana.

Havana dispatches say that good progress is being made in the work of preparation for the raising of the battleship Maine. Water is being satisfactorily pumped from the great cofferdam that surrounds the outside pressure. If the hulk is raised intact it will be towed out to deep sea and given a military burial with impressive ceremonies. The remains of the victims found in the wreckage will be buried in Arlington Cemetery with national honors, according to the present plans of the Navy Department.

FATHER GASSON SOUNDS A NEW CALL TO FIGHTING NINTH

"As in the '60s the life of the nation was threatened by the forces of disintegration, so now there are powers at work in deadly earnest which threaten to undermine the foundation of stable government and to bring down in a mass of shapeless ruin this stately edifice of a self-ruling people. And of old, when the cry rang out, 'Fall in, Ninth,' the country saw a well-disciplined body of men, stout of heart and sturdy of limb, move forward to the post of danger and there hold the position against overwhelming odds, until death in honor or glorious victory had crowned their efforts. So now again, though against other foes, the cry rings out to you men of burning faith, of boundless hope and of peerless patriotism: 'Fall in, gallant Ninth, marshal all your forces against the hireling mauraders of Mammon, who treat labor as a bale of merchandise, who by their infamous exactions blanch the cheek of the foot-weary loom tender and rob the child of the strength to which its limbs have a just claim.' "

—From Father Gasson's sermon to Ninth Regiment at Cathedral.

SLATER SUIT A TEST OF PRAYER

WEBSTER, June 12.—The efficacy of prayer to influence a court of justice in the determination of a suit at law is being tested here. The litigation is that between Mrs. Mabel Hunt Slater and her children and the trustees of the property. The mills were founded just ninety-nine years ago by Samuel Slater, the founder of the American Slaters. The industry is the chief source of income and employment for the inhabitants of Webster and business men and operatives are eager partisans of Mrs. Slater, who has been a "Lady Bountiful" to the town and its people. Every night in the homes of the 2,500 operatives in the mills prayers go up that she may be awarded the custody and management of the property.

If the suit shall be decided in her favor there will be held here next year a celebration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the cotton industry in this town. If she shall lose the litigation, no matter how busy the employes may be kept, there will be no celebration, for there is much pride in the fact that the mills have been in the one family for four generations, and the present head of the family is valiantly supported by all the people of Webster, to whom she appears in the light of a woman fighting against great odds.

DOCTOR ARRESTED ON FORGERY CHARGE

For alleged forgery of the name of Dr. J. W. Keown of the Lynn Emergency Hospital in a postal card order fir drugs valued at sixty-eight cents, Dr. Edwin V. Bray of Claremont avenue, Swampscott, was arrested by Inspectors Kane and Murray of the Lynn police force to-day. Bail was fixed at $500, which was furnished. The alleged forgery is said to have been committed while Dr. Bray was in temporary charge of the Lynn Emergency Hospital during Dr. Keown's absence in South America.

VOICE OF DEAD IN COURT FIGHT

A voice from the dead was heard in the Supreme Court, before Judge Loring to-day, when a legal battle was waged for the possession of Walter Dexter Milligan, six years of age, whose father was champion gun pointer of the United States navy a few years ago.

Mrs. Helen M. Dexter, the boy's mother, and Thomas Milligan, of the Boston Five-Cent Savings Bank, paternal grandfather of the boy, are contesting for the little fellow. While Mr. Mulligan was on the witness stand a letter from his dead son, written shortly before he died, was read. It was as follows:

Dead Father's Letter.

To the Judges of the Superior Court:

This is to certify that I am of sound mind and that I have been informed and realize that my death is near. It has been a pleasure to me to see how much my son, Walter, has improved under the care of his grandparents.

His grandparents greatly love the child and have taken a great interest in him. It is my earnest wish and desire that the sole custody of the child shall be placed in them after my death.

The child's manners were bad and his health was poor when he was turned over by his mother after the divorce proceedings. The little fellow lacked care and had received no religious instruction.

All this has changed under present conditions and it is my earnest prayer that the sole custody of my boy be given to my father and mother, Thomas and Christine Milligan.

DEXTER MILLIGAN.

The grandfather testified to the same effect and under cross-examination he admitted that he never recognized his daughter-in-law. He said that his son Dexter did not recognize his wife after learning of the birth of a second child. In the paper Dexter declares Walter Milligan to be his only son.

The grandfather testified that there was absolutely no sympathy between his daughter-in-law and himself. He denied that he had ever turned her away from his home in Saugus when she called there with her first child while her husband was on the world cruise of battleships.

During the court proceedings to-day the little fellow played about the courtroom unmindful of what was going on about him.

Got Custody of Boy.

The boy's father died on March 11, last, in Saugus, from tuberculosis contracted while in the naval service. Last December he secured a divorce from his wife at Salem and was granted custody of the boy. The divorce case was hotly contested and the mother put up a stiff legal battle at that time for the child.

After Mr. Milligan died his father, Thomas, applied for the child's custody in the Probate Court and secured it. The case is now before the Supreme Court on the mother's appeal from the decree of the Probate Court.

ACTORS ARE LAUDED BY DR. VAN ALLEN

The Rev. William H. van Allen of the Church of the Advent praised actors and their profession at the memorial service of the Boston branch of the White Rats Actors' Union in the Scenic Temple, Berkeley street, yesterday afternoon. "The actor more than any other interpreter, through an artistic medium perishes, except as his name may be preserved, because his work is only of the moment. But he takes us into another world of blessed self-forgetfulness for an hour or more," the speaker said.

The arrest followed a raid on the Market street place, at which time a printing press and several hundred policy slips were confiscated by the police. AN INVITATION TO PHYSICIANS

(Following appeared in every San Francisco daily on Feb. 13, 1911.)

We invite you to inspect a recovery that is now in process on Clay street, in a case of chronic Parenchymatous Nephritis involving chronic albumenuria and general dropsy.

This case will interest you because it was carefully diagnosed by specialists at one of our best hospitals. Patient had been tapped twice and parents notified that recovery was impossible. An operation (decapsuling the kidney) was advised, but as no assurance could be given that any results could be hoped for the parents accepted the inevitable and took the patient home to die. Before leaving the city they decided to make one more effort.

A physician was called in who put the patient on Fulton's Renal Compound, aiding it with heart, tonic and eliminative treatment. The sixth day results began to show. At this writing, 60 days later, the albumen is nearly gone, the dropsy completely so the patient is playing about the room and the attending physician believes he will be ready to be taken home in another month.

This case having been carefully diagnosed by some of the best professional talent in this city and in one of the best hospitals and recovery being theoretically impossible, the actual recovery that is now in process should interest those who still believe in the incurability of chronic Bright's disease and particularly physicians and hospitals who have patients slowly succumbing under the old methods. The physician in charge will make an appointment with and meet physicians who may be interested.

FANS TALK OF KLING AS NEW RUSTLER HEAD

By DAMON RUNYON.

NEW YORK, June 12.—John Kling, new manager of the Rustlers, is the way many fans read that sweeping trade between Frank Chance and the Beanburg management, in which a refusal to waive by John J. McGraw placed an unexpected value upon one of the player chattels used in the big dicker; but, even regardless of whether the Bostonians were after a new leader in the person of the Kansas City pool shark or not, it looks like Boston has the best of the trade in at least one essential particular.

Going the way they were, something had to be done to rejuvenate the club. It couldn't fall upon any more unfortunate lines, that is certain. Slugging the ball like pennant winners and playing with as much dash as front runners at times, the Beanboys were still losing games with a regularity that became monotonous.

The trade read Kling, Weaver, Griffin and Kaiser for Graham, Curtiss, Goode and Collins.

McGraw figures in the swap in rather a curious way. Griffin was the star twirler of Atlanta, Ga., last year. He was taken by the Cubs for a Spring trial. Atlanta was very anxious for his return and was to get him when the Cubs asked waivers on him. Chance did this when the Giants were at Atlanta in the Spring, just at the time when the McGraw delegation were handed an extremely rough deal by the Atlanta baseball fraternity.

McGraw promptly refused to waive on Griffin. It was not that the Little Napoleon wanted a pitcher that Chance couldn't use, but he saw no reason for returning good for evil in Atlanta's case. Chicago probably figured that McGraw had a line on Griffin, and, knowing the McGraw astuteness in connection with players, carried him along rather than let New York take him at the waiver price. He was never given an opportunity to show, and only his minor league record gives a line on his value.

It may be that McGraw saved a star to the big league.

Weaver is a good pitcher. He has

KLING REFUSES TO JOIN RUSTLERS AFTER CUB TRADE

CHICAGO, June 12.—John Kling, traded to the Rustlers from the Cubs, has left Chicago and gone to his home in Kansas City. He refuses to play ball with the tailenders and says he will give his attention to his business.

This leaves the Rustlers in a lamentable situation. The Boston club is surely worse off than it was before the trade.

Kling had a two-year contract with the Cubs, which expires this year, at $6,500 a year. He saw President Russell of the Bostons Sunday and inquired if his Cub salary was to go on. He was told it would not. Just what Russell offered him is not known, except that it is said to be $3,000 less than he was getting here.

In trades between clubs it is generally understood that salaries of traded players are to be the same under the new management. It is said that Fred Tenney did not look over the contracts. Kling refused to put on a uniform and did not appear at Sunday's game. President Murphy of the Cubs asserts that the trade stands, basing his position on the fact that Kling played Saturday for Boston.

May Be Holding Out.

Some believe that Kling is simply holding out for more salary than Boston is willing to pay him and that he will soon come across with his signature to a contract, but the general impression is that he would rather go back to Kansas City and run his poolroom than be affiliated with such a hopeless organization. Kling, friends say, knows as well as anyone else that his best baseball days are a thing of the past, that he is pretty near a has-been and that he prefers to retire now instead of ending up his major league career with the weakest organization that has been identified with the old league in years.

Be that as it may, Kling is outside the fold, and to-day neither President Russell nor Manager Tenney had been able to corral him and lead him in. Kling is some holdout when he wants to be, as history shows. He is rich, has a fine business and doesn't have to play ball unless he wishes to. It looks like taps for Kling at Boston's expense.

Meanwhile Messrs. Murphy and Chance are feeling pretty well, thank you. They surely put one over on the effete Bostonians, if the almost universal opinion of local fans is correct, and if Kling balks Boston has received the biggest lemon ever handed a club in a trade.

Even under the terms of the original trade, Chicago secured the best catcher in the National League to-day, probably the best catcher in the world, and a hitter at that, two good outfielders and an only classy pitcher, in exchange for a once great catcher, two pitchers almost unheard of and an outfielder. But with Kling on the shelf, it is figured that Chicago gave about $250 worth of players for about $15,000, Graham being himself worth at least $10,000 to any club at an ultra conservative estimate. Frank Chance has put through many a deal, but this one seems to be his crowning achievement in the gold brick line.

WOLGAST-MORAN BOUT JULY 4

Ad Wolgast and Owen Moran start active training this week for their battle for the lightweight championship of the world, which is billed for the Fourth of July. Both are supremely confident that they will be victorious in the fight on Independence Day. Owen has the distinction of being the only one who ever knocked out Battling Nelson.

The bout is slated for twenty rounds. It will bring together men with entirely different methods of fighting. Wolgast is the champion, and he has won this coveted honor on account of his great strength and punching ability. Once the gong clangs the Cadillac farmer is continually boring in, and attempting to rush his opponent all over the ring. Few fighters have been able to withstand these wild rushes. Contrasted to Wolgast is Owen Moran the boxer. Cool, collected, and scientific, Moran is a smooth-working boxer. He is a fighting machine.

Besides being a great boxer Moran also carries a dangerous wallop in both hands. But, unlike most fighters who carry around a good punch, Owen never goes into a bout with the intention of putting away his opponent in a few rounds. Instead, he usually plays with his man when it is possible to do so, waiting until his opponent is all worn down before slipping across a haymaker.

It was such a fight that Moran fought when he won from Nelson. His skill as a scientific boxer enabled him to completely tire out the Dane with short jabs to the face and body. Then when he had Nelson where he wanted him he was transformed into a fighting demon, rushing and boring in.

In his last few fights Wolgast displayed his old time form. When he came out of his retirement after nursing a broken arm Knockout Brown won two newspaper decisions over him in Philadelphia and New York. But they were both short fights, and on both occasions the champion was out of condition. Brown has since flatly refused to meet Wolgast over the marathon route out on the Coast.

In his last three fights with One Round Hogan, George Memsic, and Frankie Burns the champion has won handily inside of the limit. In all of these Wolgast decisively proved that he is one of the hardest hitters in the lightweight division. The Wolgast and Moran battle will have an international flavor, as Wolgast will carry the Stars and Stripes of Uncle Sam, while Moran will do his level best to bring home a victory for the Union Jack.

REULBACH STRONG COME-BACK PITCHER

Big Ed Reulbach of the Cubs, on whom Manager Chance asked waivers some weeks ago, shares with Mathewson of the Giants and young Alexander of the Quakers leadership among the National League pitchers who have worked in three or more games. Reulbach got off rather badly at the start of the season, showing a tendency toward wildness, and would have undoubtedly gone to the minors but for the belief on the part of two or three managers of other clubs that he still had something, and Chance is probably glad that he did not secure the waivers now. In the last three games Ed has pitched he has given only four bases on balls, compared with nine in one game in April.

KID LEE-DELMONT BOUT AT LOWELL

Friday night at Lowell Kid Lee, who recently returned from a successful western campaign, meets Al Delmont in a twelve-round bout. Lee's challenge to the top-notchers on his arrival home was readily accepted. The proposition to meet Delmont was the chance that the Chelsea boy has been waiting for, and he readily agreed to face the sturdy North Ender.

Lee promises to give the followers in this section the surprise of their lives with his form. That Delmont is not holding Lee lightly is evinced in the manner in which the conqueror of Monte Attell is training. Lee will prepare himself at one of the country training resorts.

GOULD IS SECOND IN FRENCH DERBY

PARIS, June 12.—The Prix du Jockey Club, known as the French Derby, was run on the Chantilly course and was won by Baron de Rochschild's Alcantara II., a bay filly by Codoman. Frank Gould's bay colt, Combourg, finished second and S. O. Joel's Cavallo third.

The French Derby is for three-year-olds, at a mile and a half, and the value of the stake this year was $40,400. Alcantara II. was the favorite in the betting and won by six lengths. A great throng turned out and many well-known Americans were present.

KRAMER WINS BIKE RACE IN FAST FINISH

NEW YORK, June 12.—Ten thousand cheering spectators saw Frank Kramer, the national bicycle champion, streak it from the rear of the big field, gain twenty-five yards in the last lap of the five-mile championship race and win the event from Jack Clarke by six inches at the Velodrome. Clarke had led the field and pedaled frantically at the sound of the bell but was unable to make the furious pace set by Kramer in the spurt. The time was 10:18 3-5. Eddie Root of Boston, a twenty-yard man, won the half-mile handicap in 55 3-5 seconds.

HARVARD CREWS OFF FOR RED TOP

By TED PARKE.

Harvard's varsity and freshmen crew squads make tracks this afternoon for Red Top on the Thames, where they will spend the last three weeks before the races against Yale, in training for the final tests. The squad is thirty-five strong, composed of the varsity eight and two varsity four oars, the freshmen eight and one four oar and a couple of subs, and the managers, coaches and rubbers. They leave Cambridge at 2:30 o'clock on a special car for Back Bay Station, where they take the 3 o'clock train for New London, the nearest point to the quarters of the crews. At this station they will be met by the John Harvard which went down to Connecticut last week, and be taken up the river to the camping ground of the Crimson oarsmen. The shells will be already rigged and as soon as the men have reached the spot they will don their rowing attire and take a short spin on the river about dusk, for this is the only row they will get to-day, and to keep the men in the proper condition this spin is very necessary.

The following men compose the varsity squad: A. T. Abeles, C. T. Abeles, N. L. Anderson, G. H. Balch, R. W. Cutler, H. Eager, A. M. Goodale, G. P. Metcalf, G. von L. Meyer, E. J. Morgan, R. M. Nelson, G. F. Newton, G. F. Stratton, A. Strong, J. C. Trumbull, H. M. Voorhees, J. Waite, J. P. Wiggins, L. Withington and Managers Iselin, Lowell and Nellson. The freshmen squad will be made up of the following: E. K. Carver, R. S. Boyd, W. A. Cleary, F. L. Converse, C. H. Crombie, E. J. Curtis, L. Curtis, W. T. Gardiner, A. H. Hay, L. H. Mills, J. S. Morgan, Q. Reynolds, A. Taylor, F. H. Trumbull, R. J. Walker, and J. Wentworth and Managers Amory and Aspinwall and "Nurse" A. Beane '11. Coach Wray will of course accompany the squad.

From this time on the crews will have the hardest kind of work, not only in the afternoon, but in the mornings, when a short, hard row will be held on the river. The only rest the men will get from these morning rows will come when they happen to have an exam, for the college authorities always provide for the men taking their exams down at Red Top on the day the exam in the special course is given in Cambridge.

The ten-mile rows that the varsity boat has been having each afternoon during the past week on the Charles will seem like child's play in comparison with the tough going they will find at New London.

The men of both squads are in the best condition and ready to do the beaver act in the way of work. Harvard has seldom had a better outlook for a varsity eight race against Yale, especially since Yale does not seem to be much of a factor this year except to act as the opponent in the big race. The freshmen crew material, although it has been badly weeded out by sickness and college difficulties, is still very good and excellent performances are expected of the cubs.

STAR BATSMEN IN ATHLETICS

The entire Athletics team, including the change catchers and one pitcher, is made up of players hitting at or beyond the .300 mark. The line-up from the viewpoint of batting averages resembles that of an all-star team, which the dopesters usually pick out at the end of the season.

With Plank in the box the team with individual batting marks looks like this: Pitcher Plank, .306; catchers, Lapp .324 Livingstone .310, Thomas .303; first base McInnes, .442; second base, Collins, .402; shortstop, Barry, .312; third base, Baker, .322; left field, Lord, .354; center field, Strunk, .300; right field, Murphy, .354.

No team of such hitting power has ever been gathered in one aggregation in major league annals. It has by this showing an added right to he title of world champions.

But coming close behind the Athletics is the Boston team, with nearly as remarkable a display of batting prowess. Barring the pitcher and first baseman, the Red Sox as they left the field on Saturday contained seven men who were hitting beyond .300. Williams at first base, who has been hitting up to .300, had fallen off in the last two games until his mark dropped to .284. The rest of the team had these ratings: Nunamaker, catcher, .304; Wood, pitcher, .194; Gardner, second base, .307; Yerkes, shortstop, .315; Purtell, third base, .545; Lewis, left field, .306; Speaker, center field, .383; Hooper, right field, .317.

YANKEES TRY FOR HORSE SHOW PRIZES

LONDON, June 12.—Much interest is being taken in the International Horse Show, to be held at Olympia, June 12 to 21. Upward of 5,000 entries have been received and although there are not as many from America as in former years, the presence of American officers in the jumping competitions makes up for this deficiency. Judge William H. Moore of New York has sent over forty-two famous show horses, Paul Cravath has entered three jumpers and Alfred G. Vanderbilt will, as usual, take part in the coaching competitions. Louis and Walter Winans will have entries in almost every class.

CALLAHAN WANTS TO MEET DELMONT

P. Callahan, who defeated Eddie Carr, claims that he is anxious to box Albert Delmont provided that Delmont will agree to let the weight be 122 pounds. It is not probable that Delmont will agree to this proposition.

$25 FOR YOUR VIEWS OF RUSTLERS TRADE

DETAILS OF GREAT RUSTLER CLUB DEAL

WHAT RUSTLERS LOSE

Catcher "Peaches" Graham.
Pitcher Cliff Curtis.
Fielders Collins and Goode.

WHAT RUSTLERS GET

Catcher Johnny Kling.
Pitchers Weaver and Griffin.
Fielder Kaiser.
And—?

Who got the best of it?

What do you think of the big baseball deal? The deal by which the Rustlers lose "Peaches" Graham, Cliff Curtis, Collins and Goode and get Johnny Kling, Weaver, Kaiser and Griffin in return?

It's the greatest baseball trade of the season and one of the most sweeping ever made in the National League. It has stirred Boston baseball followers as they have not been stirred since Harry Lord and Amby O'Connell went from the Red Sox in return for Frank Smith and Billy Purtell.

All the baseball followers are talking about it. In fact, it was more discussed Saturday night than the Red Sox's great victory over the Tigers.

The "fans" are eager to give vent to their feelings. In order to afford them an opportunity of airing their views, the Boston AMERICAN has arranged to give $25 in prizes for the best answers to the question:

Who got the best of the trade, and why?

To the person who sends the best answer, $10 will be given, to the person who sends the next best, $5 will be awarded, and the writers of the ten next best letters will receive $1 each. Everybody may compete. Everybody may air his, or her views—because the women "fans' are just as important—yes, more so—as the men "fans."

It doesn't cost anything to try. All you have to do is to write your opinion as cleverly as you know how, in FIFTY WORDS, and send it to the BASEBALL TRADE EDITOR of the AMERICAN, Nos. 80-82 Sumer street, Boston.

You had better do this right away, because the opportunity won't last long. The AMERICAN is interested in knowing just what Boston baseball followers think of this latest thing in the national game.

BOSTON BOXERS IN BUSY WEEK

Johnny Glover of South Boston will go against Johnny Stewart in the main bout at Portland to-night. Mike Twin Sullivan and that tough negro proposition, Kid Henry, will battle at Albany to-night.

Andy Morris of East Boston boxes Jim Savage in New York to-morrow night, and Wednesday evening Jimmy Walsh will try conclusions with Fred Landsdowne at Toronto.

Sam Langford and Tony Caponi are to meet at Winnipeg Friday evening, but this bout is by no means certain. Caponi would have little chance against Langford

Porky Flynn will meet Joe Jeanette in New York Friday night, and Flynn will have his work cut out for him, as Jeanette has given Langford some tough battles. The punishment that Sam inflicted upon Joe did not do the latter any particular good, but Jeanette knows too much about the finer points of boxing to be bothered by Flynn.

KOHLEMINEN WINS RACE.

NEW YORK, June 12.—William Kohleminen, champion long-distance runner of Finland, won the international twenty-mile race for professionals at Celtic Park. The winner's time, 1:56:41 3-5, is three minutes behind the American record for the distance. There were ten starters, but only four finished. Thure Johanson of Sweden was second, 400 yards back of the winner. Jim Crowley of Yonkers was third, half a mile ahead of Karl Nieleman of Finland.

RED SOX TACKLE TIGERS AGAIN

the Tigers like to breathe the salt air as well as do human beings.

Hugh Jennings carries with him one of the classiest utility men who ever played ball. He is Charles O'Leary, who calls Chicago home. Charley would be a regular on most clubs, but he has to spend most of his time on the bench at Detroit because Moriarity, Delehanty and Bush outhit him. Charley is the ideal substitute. His batting average was not astonishingly big when he was an every day performer, but when he is put in to take some one's place, he swats about as hard as the gent he supplants, no matter who it may be. As an infielder Charley has few equals. He can play second, short and third as well as the best of them and his small stature is all that keeps him from being a dandy first baseman.

Mixes Politics With Baseball.

O'Leary isn't fond of traveling around the country. He likes baseball, but he likes Chicago better and his happiest days are those at home in the Winter time. He is a politician and both he and Frank Roth, now catching at Montreal, have something to say about who's who on the Illinois burg's south side.

George Moriarity is another Chicagoan in the Detroit lineup. One of his brothers was killed on duty in the big stockyards fire last Winter. George is a lyric writer and the author of several popular songs.

The Tigers play here this afternoon and to-morrow. They depart to-morrow night for New York and the Cleveland Naps take their place in Boston. The Naps have five games booked here, including the two slated for next Saturday, which is Bunker Hill Day.

Boston fans have now seen every club in both leagues with the single exception of the Cleveland bunch. The latter is not considered a pennant contender, so local bugs have had a chance to form their own opinions as to the strength of the clubs that will be in the fight for honors.

There is no tendency just now on the part of residents of this city to count the Sox out of the race. The pennant bee will buzz here just as long as there's any use. But the citizens are not backward about admitting that there are rivals for the championship honors in the American League. The three clubs which have looked most dangerous here are Detroit, Philadelphia and Chicago. The New York Yanks did not loom up as particularly formidable.

Only time will tell us which is which, but at this distance it looks as if Philadelphia, Chicago and Detroit would share the first division with the Sox at the finish and in the meantime, can hope that said Sox will be on top of the heap.

GRAND CIRCUIT RACE OPENING

INDIANAPOLIS, June 12.—More than 200 trotters and pacers from all over the United States and Canada are here in preparation for the four-day opening of the Grand Circuit Harness Racing season, July 11 to 14, inclusive. This is the first time Indianapolis has had Grand Circuit races, and the Indiana Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, under whose auspices the meet is to be held at the Indiana State Fair Grounds, is endeavoring to make them a success.

The track, for so early in the season, is in excellent condition. A score or more of horses are on the track all of the time.

Penisa Maid and the three trotting colts, recently purchased by R. J. Mackenzie of Winnepeg, Manitoba, from M. D. Schutt for $350,000, have been transferred to the Mackenzie stables at the State Fair Grounds.

Headed by the veteran "Pop" Geers, many of the noted drivers of the world will participate in the opening Grand Circuit meet here. Frank Walker of New York will be the starting judge and A. J. Keating, also of New York, will be the presiding judge of the meet.

The program for Tuesday follows:
2.18 pacing class, 3 in 5, $1,000.
2.20 trotting stake, 3 in 5, closed, $2,500.
2.07 pacing class, 3 in 5, $1,000.
2.15 trotting class, 2 in 3, $1,000.

SUBURBAN LEAGUE TRACK AND FIELD MEET

The third annual Suburban League track and field championships will be held on the Malden High School athletic grounds Thursday afternoon at 2:30. In 1909 Malden won the title without any struggle, but last year Everett and Medford were the contenders and Everett took the shield by getting a first place in the final events, the pole vault. Somerville High will be the new member of the Suburban League to show what it can do in track athletics. Medford has a strong team and should come pretty near to winning the meet, although Malden, Melrose, Everett and Somerville may make it travel some. Everett and Medford have members of the star 1910 teams available. The Malden High authorities have been making big preparations for the meet, as a record crowd is expected. The events for the meet are 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard run, half mile, mile run, running high jump, shot put, pole vault and running broad jump.

JENNINGS SAYS BALL IS LIVELY

Hugh Jennings believes the new lively bounce ball is responsible for the big batting averages this season. He says: "I do not care what tests that ball may be subjected to, nor what claims may be made to the effect that it is no livelier than those that have been used before. I know that hits that hardly had steam enough to travel down to second base last year are travelling out to centre on the hop, skip and jump this season. I know that infielders are getting their legs batted off and that first and third baseman should rightfully be wearing catchers' masks and chest protectors to withstand the battering of the drives hit down to them.

"If you doubt that this new ball is livelier just watch the way that the ball travels down to third base. One hard bound and the sphere is over the third baseman's head and well on its way to left field. Last season it might take a half dozen hops and the third baseman still get his hands on it.

"The pitcher with the greatest speed and the greatest curve is the one who will have the most success this season. In other years a twirler with moderate speed, good control and a good head could win the majority of his games and have a good record. But it is different to-day. Unless a man can shoot the sphere over with wonderful speed like Johnson or Wood, or throw a fine curve ball, he is bound to be hit. Good headwork is only a minor asset to a pitcher in these troublous times.

PORTLAND Y. C. RACES END ANNUAL CRUISE

PORTLAND, Me., June 12.—The yachts of the Portland Yacht Club fleet returned from the annual cruise. The fleet left Long Cove at 10. There was a strong breeze and the rails were under water the greater part of the time. The races end Saturday. Commodore Reuben K. Dyer is satisfied with the way the yachts were handled and believes the knockabout Sayanora, owned by Captain Vernon F. West, will be a good representative of the club in the races this season off the Massachusetts coast. The Clique scored three victories, but had to fight hard for all she gained with the Conomo, sailed by her owner, Fleet Captain Orr.

SCHOOL CREWS IN LAWSON TROPHY ROW

WINCHESTER, June 12.—For two months the candidates for the Winchester High, Woburn High, Medford High and Dedham High School canoe crews have been working out for the annual race for the Lawson trophy, to be held on Mystic Lake Saturday afternoon in connection with the Winchester Boat Club regatta.

CHICAGO, June 12.—The Rustlers have been beaten twice by Frank Chance's pennant chasers, but they are out after this afternoon's game and will work their hardest to put a crimp in Chicago's championship aspirations.

Buster Brown will probably pitch, although there is a chance that Tenney will use Griffin, secured form Chicago in the big deal.

The trade is still the big topic of conversation around local baseball headquarters and every Chicagoan seems to opine that the Cubs got the better of it.

Curtis may be sent against his old teammates in to-day's encounter.

EVENLY MATCHED SCHOOL CREWS RACE

One of the greatest races in the history of schoolboy rowing is looked for to-morrow afternoon in the final heat for the championship of the schoolboy crews. Cambridge Latin, Brookline High, Roxbury Latin and Boston Latin lived through the eliminating trials on Friday, and with these four crews battling for the championship the record for the course is sure to go by the board. Not within the last five years have two crews been more evenly matched than Cambridge Latin and Brookline High, and those who know have stated that the battle for first place will be fought out between these two organizations.

CRIMSON SHELLS READY FOR CREWS

RED TOP, Ct., June 12.—Everything is in readiness for the arrival of the Harvard crews this afternoon. Coach Wray reached here last night, as did the shells, which came on a special train. The shells, three eights, three fours, a pair and a single, were rigged on their arrival and will be ready for practice to-day, if it is decided to send the crews on the water on their arrival. Coach Wray stated that in a practice row Saturday at Cambridge the crew worked better than at any time before this season. The varsity eight, he said, he thought was better than the eight that won from Yale last year.

HALF-MILE RACES AT HILLS GROVE TRACK

Three weeks from to-day the New England half-mile track circuit will open at Hills Grove, R. I., and if present plans do not miscarry the trotters and pacers will have an opportunity to race every week from then until "snow flies" in this part of the country. Last year Hills Grove had some excellent meetings, the racing being the best that New England has enjoyed outside the Grand Circuit since the days when Sagus was running. When John Page assumed the management at "The Grove" he promised clean sport, and visitors there say he did everything in his power to keep faith with the public.

HARVARD '61 MEN UNITE AT DINNER

It will fall to the lot of the twenty-five surviving members of the class of 1861 to uphold a Harvard tradition this year. This will be done with a commencement day spread at the Phillips Brooks House, invitations to attend to be sent to the college officials, men receiving honorary degrees, all graduates of classes preceding 1861 and the sons of members of the last named class.

MARINES PLAY SUNDAY BALL

With the consent of the Navy Department and Commandant Coffman, 2,000 people yesterday saw the first Sunday baseball game on record at the Charlestown Navy Yard to which the public was admitted.

A nine representing the marines was defeated by the Forbes lithograph team in an eleven-inning contest by a score of 4 to 3. The game was played near the new dry dock, three-quarters of a mile away from any dwelling.

Enthusiasts who were regularly seen Sundays, watching games at Fort Banks, Winthrop, before the War Department excluded the public from the exhibitions, attended the navy yard game yesterday in full force.

The crowd, seeing navy officials watching the game and believing it a test of Sunday baseball in the yard, kept perfect order.

Rooters for the Forbes team were in largest numbers, but 300 sailors were assembled on one side and pulled hard for the navy boys. The game ended with O'Brien of Forbes striking out a marine with men on second and third, when a hit would have won for the marines. He was carried away on the shoulders of the crowd.

The score:

Forbes	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	1	4	7	2
Marines	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	1	0	3	8	4

Johnny Glover vs. Johnny Stewart at Portland, Me.

CHARLES RIVER SPEEDWAY RACE

Forty horses are entered in the twelve races which will comprise the Metropolitan Driving Club's program on the Charles River Speedway to-morrow afternoon. The feature event of the afternoon will be the Class I pace, in which W. J. McDonald's Chief Wilkie will meet F. H. Bellows's Caffeno. The entries follow:

Class A, trot—Castle Todd, Arthur F. Clark, Jap Mac and Fred Mac.
Class B, trot—Patricia, George M. and Reuben L.
Class C, pace—Edith R., Billy F., Chester Boy and Big Tramp.
Class D, trot—Demarest, Fred C., Silence and Chase.

Class G, pace—Wesley Summers, Martin's Pick, Trixy S. and Country Guy.
Class H, trot—Charles Hubbard, Orphan Boy and Margate.
Class I, pace—Chief Wilkie and Caffeno.
Class J, trot—Nance Oldfield, Col. Mosby and Alclay H.
Class K, pace—Grenadier, Claberta and Lady Pinewood.

WELLS FAVORITE OVER PAL MOORE

The backbone of boxing has been broken until the Fall as far as large attendances at club meetings are concerned, although there has been a big demand for seats for the Pal Moore-Matt Wells bout at the Armory A. A. to-morrow night. According to reports Wells is one of the greatest lightweights that England has ever sent to these shores, and the little Briton rules favorite over Moore notwithstanding that Moore has beaten or drawn with several of the leading lightweights in the world.

The Wells-Moore match is important for its international bearing, although no championship hinges upon the result, and it will give Boston fight followers a chance to witness the new lightweight champion of England in action against one of the best boys of his weight developed on this side of the water.

Keep Quiet and Go On; a Good Motto.

By ADA PATTERSON

SCRAPS of wisdom float often to our ears from the gossip of the streets. I heard a bit yesterday that had all the wisdom of all the suffering ages in it. A man with head up, sharp eyes and vigorous steps addressed the words to a man who shuffled beside him, with downcast eyes, his head bent.

"Oh!" said the first man impatiently to the last "keep quiet and go on."

There's a great deal of strength gained and momentum acquired by just keeping quiet. In the big crises of our lives when foundations seem to be sweeping away and our lives and hopes are being carried with them, we gain a point simply by keeping quiet. First we spare the world a recital of our troubles, and the world is indifferent when it isn't intensely curious. And states we avoid and know to be unwelcome and painful in our saner moments. Besides we gather strength by merely keeping quiet—strength and perspective and time to gather from out the whirling chaos of our shaken lives knowledge of what to do.

The Best Advice

If a friend or lover fail us, there is no gain except in ridicule by making the welkin ring with our cries at her or his perfidy. Better adjust ourselves to the new and surprising condition without any confidences. Just keep quiet and it's amazing how much sooner the wound heals in the darkness of silence.

When blows of affliction or bereavement fall, the best advice for our needs is that scrap of street wisdom that floated to my ears: "Keep quiet and go on."

We all complain of that steady, continuous repetition of our daily duty which we name our "grind." It seems to hamper us in our finer flights; to handicap us on our forward way; to be an irritant and an annoyance. But when the big crisis come we know that "grind" is our friend in homely guise, and that he is a steadying, clarifying, saving influence. We do not, if sanity remains in us, leave him and fare forth into a world seeking that which we can never find except within ourselves—peace. We stay close to grind. We cling to it as a wrecked sailor clings to his bit of mast, and it saves us as the mast saves him.

That shuffling man beside the clean-eyed, high-headed one was ready to do anything that captain suggested. He was dissatisfied, ready to float away upon any high wave of emotion into some unknown port. I wonder if he realized how sound was the advice of the man whose gait and eye and the carriage of whose head proved that he was steering straight. "Just keep quiet and keep on."

Monuments to Mistakes

As we look backward upon the way we have come, we are liable to see wreckage that are so many monuments to mistakes. The sight hurts our pride, wounds the self-respect, jeers at the caution of all of us, yet, few if any of them could not have been avoided by simply keeping quiet and just going on.

And in the faces of those who have fared longer than ourselves, those persons of whom he would ask the question, "Traveler, what of the long road you have traversed and the end yet to come?" We see records of obedience to, or disobedience of, that command. Those who have not kept quiet and have not gone on, show scared faces and restless, unhappy eyes; and over them are written failure, rebellion and despair. And in the countenances of those who have obeyed may be best are strength, serenity and success. Between the two chasms lies the difference that lies between the wasted and the well-used life.

It takes courage to keep quiet and go on. It is not an easy way, but it is the way which, having taken, no one ever regrets.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HE WILL LEARN TO LOVE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have known a young man for the last two years and now I like very much, I am much in love with him, and it seems that he is unaware of the fact. When speaking to him I never show by love, but as soon as he leaves me I am not able stop thinking of him.

He has a very good position, and I feel that he treats me somewhat different from any other girl. I have never been out for an evening's amusement with him.

Kindly advise me how I can make him learn to love me without his knowing that I love him so much.

ANXIOUS.

CERTAINLY it is very hard if you feel that your love is not returned. But you cannot make any advances; for, under these circumstances, it will almost surely use him to think less of you.

If you sincerely love him and show it through unselfishness and thoughtfulness, he will soon recognize that you are the woman to make him happy.

TO TEST HER LOVE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am deeply in love with a young man, but unfortunately there are two other gentlemen competing for his favor.

For the past year and a half she has shown no preference for any particular one.

Will you kindly advise me how I may know, by some sort of test, whom he would prefer?

He appears to have a weakness for candy.

D. B. C.

Of course the best test is to ask her to marry you, and her preference will be known. She evidently has not quite made up her mind, but she will naturally choose the one who most sincerely loves her and shows her the greatest respect.

If she is rich, besides being clever, she will detect and avoid the man who seeks anything other than herself.

If she likes you, she will interest herself in the pursuit that you like best, and you can do likewise in regard to her.

It depends largely upon your nature and whether you are suited for each other.

A Successful Wife

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT

By G. DORSET

PART ONE—(Continued)

IT was a relief to me to see that Mrs. Roxburg was even more undressed than I felt. She was a big woman, with a proud, rude look, and her eyes and her jewels seemed to glitter at me. When I shook hands with her I had to tell her twice who I was. Then she said: "Really? Howdy do—delighted!" And over her shoulder to my husband, who was standing there with several men—he'd been kept so long he had to dress there—she announced:

"Your wife, Mr. Kirkland."

He looked pleased, but he was evidently angry at something or other. In seeing him my first feeling used to be, I wonder if he's himself! But I know I didn't need to wonder that any more; it would have been more reasonable if I had thought, "I wonder what he has changed to now?"

A Cinderella

He had a flower in his buttonhole, and Mrs. Roxburg was wearing the same kind. My husband stared at me as though I were a perfect stranger; indeed, I must have looked like a perfect stranger to him—I never saw a man more surprised. Then he burst out laughing very softly, and bent down and said to me so low that no one else heard:

"By Jove, Cinderella, who is your fairy godmother?"

"It's a real Worth gown," I told him. "Is it all right?"

He smiled broadly and seemed pleased with me, and I could see that he thought I was joking when I said "Worth."

Mrs. Roxburg came up and brought a gentleman to take me in to dinner. There were forty people at the table, and I could watch and think of Senator Collatz's remark about the "feeding of the hog."

Mrs. Roxburg went in with a dark, foreign-looking man—the Prince Ribrosa—and she hung on his arm, laughing up at him, her jewels flashing. My husband stood near her, a good way down the table. Mrs. Roxburg flirted dreadfully with the foreigner, and Senator Roxburg paid no attention to it whatever. He was talking with the lady on his left, and my husband was the only person the flirtation seemed to annoy. The gentlemen on either side of me talked, and it wasn't hard to answer, for they were interesting, and managed so that the first thing I knew they both talked together across me about the operations at issue. By-and-by I heard Mr Kirkland answer down the table something Senator Roxburg said, and this set my husband going, and for quite a while he talked, and the whole dinner party listened to him. Mrs. Roxburg stopped flirting with the Prince, and silenced him when he tried to interrupt. I was glad. When my husband stopped speaking the guest on my right said:

"Senator Roxburg has a most unusual secretary. You must be proud of your husband, Mrs. Kirkland."

The gentleman stayed in the dining room to smoke, but the Prince came out with Mrs. Roxburg, and they whispered and flirted all the evening. I wouldn't have minded sitting there and watching if my shoes hadn't hurt, and my dress hadn't been so awfully tight; but it was glistening and pretty, and it fell softly, and I liked to think of it being mine, and to look down at it.

In the carriage my husband said to me: "You were the best-dressed woman in the room. Mrs. Roxburg looked a mahogany monkey alongside of you. I am much obliged, Esther. I was proud of you, my dear—"

Of course, I was perfectly delighted.

"—I couldn't believe my eyes when I saw you enter that room! I didn't care what you wore—if you had come in a waterproof it would have been all one to me; nevertheless, I am much obliged. I didn't know Washington could turn out such a creation as your dress."

Then I told him again it was Worth. He lit a cigarette and threw the match out of the window and laughed.

"Well, upon my word! And I told Senator Roxburg, who admired it very much, that my wife made it herself!"

"Goodness gracious!" I exclaimed. "You must think I can work miracles!"

Miracle Worker

And he turned on me very solemnly and said, "I do think so."

When we got to our rooms he asked me, "What do you think of Roxburg?"

And I answered that the Senator seemed to depend upon his secretary very much indeed.

Mr. Kirkland didn't notice this, and after a little while asked, "What do you think of his wife?"

"I think she is stylish and handsome?"

"She's a stupid coquette," my husband exclaimed, angrily. "Roxburg is as blind as a bat."

He didn't say any more on that subject; and when I told him there wasn't a man in the room as clever as he was, he believed. I went on to say how splendid his speech was at the table, and how everybody had enjoyed hearing him talk. He was washing his hands at the basin and wiping each finger slowly. He said to me:

"The life down here in Washington is what I want, but I don't want it in this way. I have a great mind to go out West and practice law in some small town and make my name there." He looked at me eagerly. "What do you think of that, Esther?"

"I think it a splendid idea."

"So do I, so do I, my dear girl. Westward ho!"

He drew a long breath, stretched his arms, and exclaimed: "The plains, the eternal snows, the primeval sweeps, the new soil, the simple people and the miles of unplough land!"

He came over to me and sat down by me on the bed. I had begun to undress. I thought I would wait until he finished talking, and then I would go into my own room.

"Patient Griselda, how much longer is this divine patience going to last?" And he interrupted himself. "Don't answer me—don't set a limit." He took my hand up and looked at it hard, and said, softly: "You have manicured your nails, too—upon my word! I remember I used to watch those fingers flying over the typing keys—do you ever miss your work, Esther?"

I told him that I hadn't had much time, and that possibly I could work some out West.

A Handsome Meat Stand

GIVE the June bride one of the new stands to hold a meat platter, which come in openwork silver, in oval form, and have silver feet to raise the dish slightly from the table.

The stand divides in the middle, and can be adjusted to hold any platter. One of the models has a small alcohol lamp beneath the opening to keep the meat hot.

While in solid silver such a stand is extremely costly, yet very good designs can be found in plated ware. These stands are highly useful, as they do away with unsightly mats and make scarred tables impossible.

A MEAN REPLY.

"Talk about man!" exclaimed the suffragist, "What has man ever done for woman?"

"He's furnished her with a model she's trying durned hard to imitate," came a voice from the rear of the hall.

Lysander John Brings a Present Home to His Wife—She Deems It a Sign of Guilt

THE first guest to depart is always resented, of course, but, certain rules of good breeding must be observed even in proceedings so scandalous.

Here is an important one: When a guest has departed, remaining guests must wait for the hostess to get out the kindling and matches. Under no circumstances may a remaining guests be permitted to start the fire.

The guests at Mrs. Lysander John Appleton's house, the other afternoon, were so well bred they remembered this rule of etiquette, and the silence that followed the departure of the first guest was unbroken until the hostess scratched a match with the following remark:

"That woman has so much faith in her husband that if he told her he saw a whale swimming up Fifth avenue she would go running with her kodak."

Then the Talk Began

The remark started the women on the subject of a woman's faith in man, a subject on which a woman begins to talk with wisdom the second week of her marriage, and on which she talks more eloquently as time goes on, always leaving much to be said and more to be surmised.

When a prayer meeting is held to offer up prayers for rain, few women have so much faith that they take their umbrellas, but when a woman loves a man she will have faith in anything and everything.

This was the gist of the talk that followed the departure of Mrs. Appleton's guest, and Mrs. Appleton, instead of finding, in woman's faith in man, the greatest factor in the world for his salvation, deplored it; she thought it a mark of weakness in the woman; a signal to the bunco man that he would find an easy victim.

Needless to say that in Mrs. Appleton's vinegar-view of life, every husband is a bunco-man, every wife a victim.

"She boasts of the fine presents her husband gives her," said Mrs. Appleton, referring to the departed guest, "and hasn't sense enough to know that a man always brings home a present, a new lamp, or a box of candy, or a piece of cut glass to his wife as a salve to his conscience when he has done wrong.

Poor Lysander John!

"Such gifts are all Signs of Guilt! If my husband brought home a present like that to me, do you know what I would say? Well, it would be plenty! He would know he can't fool me! Oh, I know the men!"

That night, when Lysander John came home, he bore in his arms a cut-glass berry bowl for his wife, which he had heard her say she wanted, and the purchase of which had meant much self-denial. He intended it as a surprise to her, and it was.

Poor Lysander John!

Desperate Desmond

Copyright, 1911, National News Association.

The Indians from the Wild West show, at Claude's command, are going to subject Desperate Desmond to their justly celebrated lawn roller torture. The only difference between an ordinary lawn roller and the Indian kind is that the latter is studded with long, sharp spikes, but that is quite some difference, believe us.

The idea, as you have no doubt already guessed, is that Desmond is to lie on the ground and let the roller pass over his prostrate form. The spikes will pierce him through and through, and his villainous career will be at an end. We don't see how this stunt can fail, but we are not making any bets on the result.

It so happens that right in the path of the roller is a chest of pirate gold, buried there years ago by Desmond's grandfather, who was a famous buccaneer. Nobody knows it is there but us, and we are not telling anybody but you. Of course, you will not mention it to a soul. It wouldn't do for everybody to know these things.

Oh, well, the secret is out now. That lawn roller has dragged the oaken chest from its hiding place, and the gold and jewels are scattered all over the lot. Now if we had only gone and dug that treasure up yesterday we would have been rich beyond the dreams of avarice and these lines never would have been written.

Observe what the passion for gold will do. Claude, Rosamond and their Indian allies have all forgotten their plans for vengeance and are engaged in a wild scramble for the contents of the treasure chest. Desmond is not slow to take advantage of the opportunity and rolls away from the vicinity of those spikes.

The villain has rounded up his wild men and lured them by promises of much gold and fine jewels to help him. His aim is to capture Rosamond and grab the loot. But Claude and the cowboys and Indians are on guard and will defend the girl and the treasure with their lives. There will be a thrill in every one of to-morrow's pictures.

Getting an Education—The Real Man to Get the Best Out of Life Gives His Mind a Stern Training

By Thomas Tapper

I.

EVERY one must be more or less educated. Even the savage cannot get along without learning a good deal about the world he lives in.

What is this Education of which we hear so much? The word itself tells the whole story. "Education" is "leading out," according to the meaning of the word as it comes to us from the Latin.

Now, "leading out" is altogether different from "pouring in." Indeed, so widespread is the idea that Education means pouring and pounding facts into the mind that we have almost lost the true sense and grasp of the word's real meaning.

What is it that is "led out of the mind" in Education?

Power.

Education has to do with mind power, how to direct it and how it should best be used.

The real man, owner of body and mind, must, to get the best in life, give his mind a stern training. He must use it in such a way that he, its master, can show what he can do.

A man who wants to fly through the air must first make an air machine. The first step, which is the desire to fly through the air, leads on to the doing of it, if the man keeps at it. The process is at once simple and beautiful.

One day the real man back of mind and body has this wish to fly, to speed through the air as a bird speeds. He turns this wish over to his mind, saying: "You and I will work this out. I will think, and you will do what I order. Some day we will be able to make of wood and metal the very thing we work out here in the unseen mental shop."

So the man and his mind work over the problem together until the mind understands what the man wants. Then the man says to his mind:

"We have at last worked this out right. Now let us tell the body about it."

Then the man and his mind speak to the body, and tell it to make a model of the mind picture. The mind guides the hands and body until it has made an exact duplicate of the mental flying machine.

When this is done, the man and his mind study its every part to see if the body has done true work. If not, they begin again. And when, at last, it is clear that the real machine is exactly like the mind model, the man takes his mind and body with him into the machine, starts the motor, and off they go.

In all this, power has come forth. And power is the one thing that must be developed by Education.

II.

There are many steps to be taken while the little child grows to be the man who succeeds in making a practical flying machine. In that time there are no end of lessons to be learned. Every one of these lessons has a single purpose; to make the mind act, and, by action, to gain strength, and, by gaining strength, to be able to store up power.

In its effort to make good citizens the government demands a certain amount of education of all children. They learn those first principles of things which, as far as we know, best serve them to become workers in life. When school days are passed, Education is supposed to be finished. Books are closed, lessons are done, the youth is henceforth free.

As a matter of fact, the greatest book in the world is about to be opened to him—the book of life. The hardest lesson just set before him—how to live life like a man. The youth is not free, NOW. He was free THEN. Be he rich and idle, poor and industrious; or, poor and idle, rich and industrious, the responsibility of life is before him.

III.

Where, then, does Education come in?

It comes in here.

The desire of the man must be as high as his nature—and his nature is divine.

The mind of the man must be trained to such a degree of power that when it is "led out" it will be able to deal with his wishes.

The body of the man must be his servant. It must do as he says.

How shall we learn to get this education?

No one can say definitely, for every one of us differs from every other. What each must do to let out his power he must find for himself; but some things are true for us all.

And they are these:

Everything a man is called upon to do he can do perfectly; not, perhaps, the first time, but he is bound to do it perfectly if he keeps on trying.

Every job a man is called upon to do is not the end of his work, but the beginning. Every job has an opportunity locked up in it. Stone-cutting in a quarry was not stone-cutting to Hugh Miller, it was Nature's wide-open book of geology.

Everything a man does other people will look at, and by it be more or less influenced. Hence, what a man does spells the man. He should take care that it spells him correctly. The job and the thing he makes are photographs of his mind.

The more care he takes the better picture he makes.

If education teaches a man that he is always showing himself up in his work he has found the true way and meaning of it.

The De Bercy Affair

TO DAY'S INSTALMENT
By GORDON HOLMES

Copyright, 1910, by Edward J. Clode

"AND now he has got hold of your Saracen dagger. But don't you fear him; I shall know how to foil him at the last; I alone have the knowledge that will surely make him a fool. Trust in me! I tell you so. But I can't help your being arrested—that must happen. Believe me, for I know.

"And let that once take place, and that Tormouth girl will never look at you again. I understand her class, with its prides and prejudices—she will never marry you—innocent or guilty—if you have once stood in the dock at an assize court. Such as she does not know what love is.

"I would take you if you were a thousand times guilty—and I only can prove you innocent—even if you were guilty—because I am yours—your preordained wife—oh, I shall die of my love—yes, kiss me—yes—now——"

Her Eyes Glaring

The torrent of words ended in a fierce fight for breath. Her eyes were glaring like two lakes of conflagration, her cheeks crimson, her forehead pale. Unexpectedly, eagerly, she caught him round the neck in an embrace from which there was no escape. She drew him almost to his knees, and pressed his lips to hers with a passion that frightened and repelled him.

And he was in the thick of this unhappy and ridiculous experience when he heard behind him an astonished "Oh!" from someone, while some other person seemed to laugh in angry embarrassment.

It was Jenkins who had uttered the "Oh!" and when the horrified Osborne glanced round he saw Rosalind's eyes peering over Jenkins's shoulder. She it was who had so lightly, so perplexedly, laughed.

Before he could free himself and spring up she was gone. She had murmured to Jenkins: "Some other time," and fled.

As she ran out blindly, and was springing into the cab, Janoc, in pursuit of her, drove up. In an instant he was looking in through the door of the cab.

"Miss Marsh?" he inquired.

"Yes."

His hands met, wringing in distress.

"You are the lady I as searching for, the mistress of the young girl Pauline Dessaulx, is it not? I am her brother. You see—you can see—the resemblance in our faces. She threatent this instant to commit the suicide——"

Rosalind was forced to forget her own sufferings in this new terror.

"Pauline!" she cried, "I am not her employer. Moreover, she is ill—in bed——"

"She has escaped to my lodging during your absence from home! Something dreadful has happened to her—she speaks of the loss of some weapon—one cannot understand her ravings! And unless she sees you—her hands cannot be kept from destroying herself—Oh, lady! lady! Come to my sweet sister——"

Rosalind looked at him with the scared eyes of one who hears, yet not understands. There was a mad probability in all this, since Pauline might have discovered the loss of the daggers; and, in her present anguish of spirit, the thought that the man's story might only be a device to lure her into some trap never entered Rosalind's head. Indeed, in her weariness of everything, she regarded the mission of succor as relief.

Mrs. Marsh's Visit

"Where do you live? I will go with you," she said.

"Lady! Lady! Thank God!" he exclaimed, "It is not far from here, in Soho."

"You must come in my cab," said Rosalind.

Janoc ran to pay his own cabman, came back instantly, and they started eastward, just as Osborne, with the wild face of a man falling down a precipice, rushed to his door, calling after them frantically. "Hi, there! Stop! Stop! For Heaven's sake——"

But the cab went on its way.

Next morning, just as the clock was striking eight, Osborne was rising from his bed, after a night of unrest, when Jenkins rapped at the door and came in, deferential and calm.

"Mrs. Marsh below to see you, sir," he announced.

Osborne blinked and stared with the air of a man not thoroughly awake, though it was his mind, not his body, that was torpid.

"Mrs.," he said, "not Miss?"

"No, sir, Mrs."

"I'll be there in five minutes," he hissed with a fierce arousing of his faculties, and never before had he flung on his clothes in such a flurry of haste; in less than five minutes he was flying down the stairs.

"Forgive me!" broke from his lips as he entered the drawing room, and "Forgive me!" his visitor was saying to him in the same instant.

It was pitiful to see her—she, ever so enthroned in serenity, from whom such a thing as agitation had seemed so remote, was wildly agitated now. That pathetic pallor of the aged when their heart is in labor now underlay her skin. Her lips, her fingers, trembled; the tip of her nose, showing under her half-raised veil, was pinched.

"The early hour—it is so distressing—I beg your forgiveness—I am in most dreadful trouble——"

"Please sit down," he said, touching her hand, "and let me get you some breakfast."

"No, nothing—I couldn't eat—it is Rosalind——"

Now he, too, went a shade paler.

"What of Rosalind?"

"Do you by chance know anything of her whereabouts?"

"No!"

"She has disappeared."

Her head bowed, and a sob broke from her bosom.

"Disappeared"—his lips breathed the word foolishly after her, while he looked at her almost stupidly.

Mrs. Marsh's hand dropped with a little nervous fling.

"She has not been at home all night. She left the house apparently between 4 and 5 yesterday—I was out; then I came in; then you called. . . . She has not come home—it is impossible to conceive. . . ."

"Oh, she has slept with some friend," he said, feeling that the world reeled around him.

"No, she has never done that without letting me know. . . . She would surely have telegraphed me. . . . It is quite impossible even to imagine what dispensation of God——"

Felt Impelled

She stopped, her lips working; suddenly covering her eyes with her hand, as another sob gushed from her, she humbly muttered:

"Forgive me, I am nearly out of my senses."

He sprang up, touched a bell and whispered to Jenkins, who instantly was with him: "Brandy—quick." Then, running to kneel at the old lady's chair, he touched her left hand, saying: "Take heart—trust in God's Providence—rely upon me."

"You believe, then, that you may find her——?"

"Surely: whatever else I may fail in, I could not fail now. . . . Just one sip of this to oblige me." Jenkins had stolen in, and she drank a little out of the glass that Osborne offered.

"You must think it odd," she said, "that I come to you. I could not give a reason—but I was so distracted and benumbed. I thought of you, and felt impelled——"

"You were right," he said. "I am the proper person to appeal to in this case. Besides, she was here yesterday——"

"Rosalind?"

"The fact is——"

"Oh, she was here? Well, that is something discovered! I did well to come. Yes—you were saying——"

"I will tell you everything. Three days ago she wrote me a letter——"

"Rosalind?"

"Are you astonished?"

"I understood—I thought—that your friendship with her had suffered some—check."

"That is so," said Osborne with a bent head. "You may remember the night of the dance at the Abbey down at Tormouth. That night, when I was full of hopes of her favor, she suddenly cast me off like a burr from her robe—I did not even now sure why—unless she had discovered that my name was not Glyn."

"If so, she no doubt considered that a sufficient reason, Mr. Osborne," said Mrs. Marsh, a chill in her tone. "One does not like the names of one's friends to be detachable labels."

"Don't think that I blame her one bit!" cried Osborne—"no more than I blame myself. I was ordered by the police to take a name. There seemed to be good reason for it. I only blame my baleful fate. Anyway, so it was. She dropped me—into the Pit. But she was at the inquest——"

"Indeed? At the inquest. She was there. Singular."

"Deeply veiled. She didn't think, I suppose, that I should know. But I should feel her presence in the blackest——"

Osborne Appeals

"Mr. Osborne—I must beg—do not make your declarations to me——"

"May I not? Be good—be pitiful. Here am I, charged with guilt, conscious of innocence——"

"Let us suppose all that, but are you a man free to make declarations of love? One would say that you are, as it were, married for some time to come to the lady who has lately been buried."

"True," said Osborne—"in the eyes of the world, in a formal way; but in the eyes of those near to me? Oh, I appeal to your indulgence, your friendship, your heart.

"Tell me that you forgive, that you understand me! and then I shall be so exuberantly gladsome that in the sweep of my exhilaration I shall go straight and find her, wherever she lies hidden. Will you not say 'yes' on those terms?"

He smiled wanly, with a hungry cajolery, looking into her face.

At Home I'm King

By KENNETT HARRIS

DOWN town I sing uncommon small,
  I have to stand for snub and slight;
I'm at some bully's beck and call
  To hustle round from morn till night.
It were indeed a sorry plight,
  But for the solace time will bring.
When from the shop I take my flight,
  At home I am a very king.

Down town I am a slave, a thrall,
  A shining mark for petty spite;
No convict in his chain and ball
  Felt more the deadly prison blight.
There is no sense in showing fight,
  And still I think, when grovelling,
Soon I'll regain my proper height.
  At home I am a very king.

Down town I smile at words that gall,
  I bow to each blamed bimberskite;
I run their wishes to forestall,
  I strive to please with all my might.
But, with my own front door in sight,
  My pleasant air aside I fling;
At one and all I scowl by right
  At home I am a very king.

L'ENVOI

Then it's my turn to snarl and bite,
  To snap and sneer, to stab and sting;
I do not have to be polite
  At home I am a very king.

The Wonder World

EYES, ears are flooded conduits of delight;
  I need new senses to take in the full
Immeasurable ocean of fair sight,
  Of song and perfume and the wonderful
Immense divinity of earth and heaven.
  Earth wears the garment of a deity
In alms unto her nakedness new-given.
  Hardly I can rejoice for ecstasy.
Oh, that my soul were as a bird to sing!
  Oh, that my heart were as a flower to bloom,
To break in gladness worthy of the Spring
  And utterly forget the hidden tomb,
And keep no memory of sad things seen,
And only feel this wonder-world of green!

Just a few of the thousands of unsolicited testimonials regarding Fels-Naptha soap:

So Much Less Work.

"Through Mrs. Dr. Robinson, I learned first of your naptha soap and must admit I tried it without much hope of success, but I was surprised at the result. The following week I tried it on a large washing and was delighted beyond measure. I will use no other as long as I can get Fels-Naptha. I tell every lady about it that I come in contact with, for I feel it is a duty I owe every working sister. I laughingly told a gentleman that a man did not love his wife if he did not provide her with Fels-Naptha soap. My family says I am half crazy about it, but I have so much less work, so much more time for other things and so much less fatigued when my washing is done that I feel I cannot speak too highly of Fels-Naptha soap or speak of it too often. All my neighbors will endorse every word I have written and I could write pages."

Mrs. J. B. Mauthnis, San Antonio, Texas.

Clothes Whiter Than Ever Before.

"I have been using Fels-Naptha soap for almost six months and consider it the only soap for dining room, kitchen and laundry. My silver and glass never looked so bright and beautiful as it does since using Fels-Naptha soap, and the clothes, table linen, etc., are whiter than ever before."

Katharine Harman, Owing Mills, Md.

Fels-Naptha Don't Injure the Clothes.

"On account of the illness of my washwoman, I had a chance to give Fels-Naptha soap a thorough test and I wish to say that I am more than pleased. It don't injure the clothes in the least. It just makes the dirt let go and leaves them clean and white as snow. Several highly advertised and labor-saving soaps have come under my notice, but none seems to fill the bill like Fels-Naptha. My husband just asked me if I was trying to make a name for myself as a washwoman. I said no, but with Fels-Naptha soap I can be independent of a washwoman if I wish."

Mrs. G. N. Stroud, Louisville, Ky.

Fels-Naptha Soap Did It.

"There are so many worthless soaps (especially of the laundry variety) on the market now that I feel it is a duty to you, and it certainly is a pleasure to tell you how highly we appreciate Fels-Naptha. I have used the soap since first introduced to us by one of your agents, nearly five years ago, and feel safe in saying that it is superior to any upon the market to-day. When we have an unusually large washing and comment upon how nicely I have accomplished the task, my husband invariably says Fels-Naptha did it."

Emily Apple, Johnstown, Pa.

Boon to Housekeepers.

"Never before in my experience as a housekeeper have I felt called upon to write my thanks to any of the numerous firms who have 'Aids to Housekeepers' on the market, but since I first used Fels-Naptha soap I have been filled with gratitude to the person who gave to housekeepers this great labor-saving soap. I have sung its praises until my friends think it is really quite a joke, because for everything my answer is 'Use Fels-Naptha soap.' I want to thank you for the great comfort and pleasure its use has brought to me and I say sincerely that you have introduced an article which will be a boon to the housekeeper."

Mrs. Emmett, Dayton, Ohio.

Every Spot Came Off.

"I never before wrote a testimonial for anything, but my sense of what is due you prompts me to send you this unsolicited statement of the worth of your splendid soap—Fels-Naptha. During the winter our stovepipe sprung apart at one of the joints (in the hallway) and the snow melted and run into the soot forming a sort of creosote water, I suppose—which spattered out on the floor and washboards. It was a most unpleasant mar on an otherwise clean floor. We had supposed we should have to hire a painter to scrape the floor and washboards and then re-varnish and paint, as we had tried soaps in vain and other things too,—to remove the unsightly, black-spattered stain. Imagine my surprise and delight when my girl applied Fels-Naptha soap. Every spot came off and the wood was as clean as new. I appreciate the value of such a household friend, and gladly commend it to all housekeepers who want a good thing."

Mrs. M. D. McKnn, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Only Soap He Could Use.

"Crossing the continent last summer, I noticed a newsboy on a train in Arizona in the wash room with the private soap box. I asked him if ordinary soap was not good enough for him and he replied that crossing through alkali country Fels-Naptha was the only kind that could be used without cracking the hands or face and he advised me to never travel without it. My wife uses Fels-Naptha soap for washing and other domestic purposes and told me last evening that it was the most satisfactory soap she had ever used."

Victor Kaufmann, Washington, D. C.

JOWETT'S VIEW OF AMERICANS

NEW YORK, June 12.—Dr. John Henry Jowett, the famous English preacher who was called to the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York from Birmingham, is of the opinion that virtue flourishes in America, but under heavy handicaps. He is about to sail to attend the coronation, at which he will be an especially favored guest of King George.

"You have speed and wealth and an endless variety of everything here," he said to-day. "But can it bring you happiness? Does it insure health and peace and good cheer? You have amassed greater wealth. Life goes at a swifter pace, whether forward or backward. There is in this melting pot, as you call it, the most wonderful mixture that the world has ever seen.

"But I am convinced that you need the spiritual teachings that the Christian church can give. I believe that it is the word of God only that will satisfy the unrest and the discontent that is abroad in this land.

"Stand on any street corner and look into the faces you see. Every second man seems to be carrying a burden beyond his strength. Concentration and individualism are sapping the strength of thousands who have no divine love and no faith to uphold them.

"Soon we will be using aeroplanes instead of railroad trains, perhaps. We are living at a terrific pace. Those who are lost in the race are filled with miseries and disappointments. The greater the pace the more disastrous the fall. But Americans are keenly sensitive to spiritual things, and I find hope because you are not cold or lacking in understanding."

S. S. PRINCE ARTHUR RAMS A BIG WHALE

One hundred and fifty passengers on the Prince Arthur, the Dominion Atlantic line steamer which arrived in Boston from Yarmouth, N. S., yesterday, were aroused at 2 o'clock in the morning and frightened when the steamer hit a big whale broadside. The collision jarred the whole ship, throwing some of the passengers out of their berths. The steamer was going at a rapid rate in a choppy sea. The sharp prow of the steamer almost cut the whale in halves.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STOCKS SELLING ON MERIT BASIS

By THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, June 12.—While waiting for crop news of a decided character the stock market has drifted into a trading affair. The fundamentals are bullish and for the immediate future, the money seems to be on the long side. Such crop scares as have been attempted already have been failures. It is too early in the season for them to be taken very seriously.

The fact that the leading operators in grain are long of grain and short of stocks tends to discredit some of the expert testimony regarding the weather. The weakness of wheat in Chicago is due to enforced selling by overloaded operators. This weakness tends to make the public view too lightly the lack of rain in the Winter wheat and corn belts, the western portion of the cotton belt is also seriously in need of rain. But the Great Northwest is having abundant moisture and so is the larger part of the country.

It must also be remembered that the stock of produce left over from last year is large and that crops abroad are not up to the standard, so that the money value of the agricultural products to be sold in the next twelve months is sure to be greater than for the last twelve months.

Only "Scarecrows."

The country as a whole is in a prosperous condition and there is nothing but scarecrows against the stock market. These scarecrows are being exposed day by day, and even the Congressional investigation of the Steel Trust is petering out as a stock market influence.

There is reason for believing that before many months the investigation itself will be investigated, or at least Congress will feel it is its duty to make clear to the public it was not misled into making the investigation by any Wall Street operators.

It is understood that in the hope of finding something new the committee will subpoena some Wall Street bankers and brokers. The real insiders of the Tennessee Coal & Iron pool may be disclosed, and it can be said in confidence that the Steel Trust will not interfere with this exposure.

In view of Judge Gary's warning to the Congressional committee against the stock market, it would be interesting to know the stock market position of the various individuals on both sides of the question of the Steel Trust's legality. A margin call often sounds louder than the voice of the people. The people thought they were making themselves heard last November.

The average level of stocks, as computed by the Wall Street system, is within ten points, for the railroads, of the highest average on record. While the system of arriving at these averages is antiquated and odd in many ways, it is the best one that any one has taken the trouble to work out, and is used in showing that stocks are not extremely cheap.

Stocks Cheaper than Money.

Since the market has been subjected to so many adverse influences in recent months and has withstood them, it must be that stocks are selling on their merits. There is no secret about the lack of rain in certain parts of the country and the important banking interests say that the present prices of stocks measure that lack of rain. They declare all market plans now being worked out take this into consideration. With more generous rains, the added prosperity must be added to the prices now aimed at. Stocks are cheaper than money. The peculiar shifting of activity from one group to another represents attempts to adjust the situation.

The new week promises to be one of specialty movements. Pools have been formed in many issues and as these pools do not dare manipulate their stocks downward for fear of discouraging public trading, they will be compelled to advance prices if they attempt anything at all.

More optimism is apparent in the copper world, for the reason that although the production increased consumption practically kept pace with it.

Business is improving all the time and the outlook in this connection is bright enough. The reductions made in iron and steel prices are bringing in more orders, and it may not be long ere peace again reigns in that part of the industrial world.

The intrinsic soundness of the speculative position in the stock market is not to be denied, and this is the main reason why the bulls have not waited until assured beyond the peradventure of a doubt that the harvests are to be all that is desired.

Gross Sales of Sears, Roebuck & Co. for May were 6 per cent. ahead of last year. April sales were practically the same as a year ago, while March showed a gain of approximately 9 per cent.

The East Boston Co. is negotiating for the sale of several pieces of its property, which will probably be consummated in a few days. In the first three months of the current fiscal year the company has sold 131,456 square feet of land, which exceeds sales for the entire fiscal year ended March 31 last by 23,015 square feet. It is proposed shortly to move the present offices of the company on Congress street to larger and more suitable quarters on State street. Edward H. Taylor, who is largely responsible for the remarkable development of the city of Niagara Falls, N. Y., has been appointed sales agent of the East Boston Co.

So far as the equipment stocks are concerned they ought to do better in a short time, after having been neglected for a year or more. The railroads have been buying from hand to mouth for several years, and unless new equipment is ordered very soon there will be a car famine when the crop-moving season comes around. At present there are but 167,000 idle cars in the country, and as the prospects are good for big crops the problem is as to how to get them to market. In June, the shortage was in excess of 5,000 cars. The last three years have not witnessed a sufficient increase in the number of new cars to keep step with necessities, and the railroads will find themselves in a fine fix before very long.

An official of the Remington Typewriter Company says in explanation of the assertion that the company has a surplus of "blind machines" for rental: "For nearly three years the Remington Company has been manufacturing and selling one of the best visible machines on the market. Our sales during this period have been larger than ever before. March sales exceeded by 12 per cent. our bookings for any single month since the typewriter has been on the market and new orders received for the first quarter of 1911 exceeded by 28½ per cent. sales for the same period of the previous year. Popularity of the visible model has resulted in clients changing their former models for the visibles in very large numbers. This has placed on our hands a large number of machines of old models, which we are now offering for rental for three months for $5."

STOCK MARKET HAS STRENGTH

NEW YORK, June 12.—There was a complete absence of the recent indication of the bear campaign against U. S. Steel at the opening of the stock market to-day, the strength which was shown in Steel being reflected generally throughout the list.

The first sales of Steel common were made at 78¼ and 78½, against 77⅞ at Saturday's close. Traders would not express an opinion whether the bear campaign had failed, but they were disposed to believe that the Congressional investigation of the U. S. Steel Corporation was losing its effect as a market factor.

There was much activity at the opening, reflecting a marked improvement. There was an increased demand from many sources. The Southern railways, which have been in good demand for some time, continued their upward course, both common and preferred advancing ½, and selling at the highest range of the year.

The Hill shares showed persistent buying, Great Northern opening fractionally higher. A gain of ½ point was scored in St. Paul.

The Erie continued to show exceptional strength, the common opening ⅛ up and the preferred showing an initial gain of ⅛. Broader interest was shown in the specialties. The first trading also registered the following gains: Amalgamated Copper ⅛, Pennsylvania ⅛, American Smelting ⅛, Union Pacific ⅛, Canadian Pacific ¼.

The Curb market opened steady. American Tobacco and Standard Oil were unchanged. Dealings in Americans on the London market were mostly professional, prices being irregular.

$5,000,000 AUTO BUS COMPANY

By J. C. KERRISON.

After five years of experiments costing $250,000, a new motor bus company with a capital of $5,000,000 is being launched in London to put its vehicles, not only on the well-defined routes being served by the big company that has a practical monopoly in the metropolis, but in many districts which are yet unreserved. Great secrecy has attended the test of the new style motor bus known as the "K. P. L." which has satisfied all of the rigid police regulations.

The name "K. P. L." is derived from the Knight engine, the Picker system of transmission and the Lanchester general construction, and the corporation is being financed, it is reported by the Daimler Company and a Birmingham concern closely allied with the Daimler Company.

Not a little interest attaches to the operations of the company capitalized at $5,000,000 as it is built around an American idea—the Knight sleeve-valve engine patented by Charles Y. Knight, formerly a resident of Chicago, Ill., but now a leading figure in the Daimler works at Coventry where the Knight-Daimler engine orders are being received so rapidly that the maximum resources of the works are unable to meet the demand. The Knight style of engine has been adopted by several of the largest motor manufacturers of the continent as well, including the German Mercedes, the French Panhard, the Belgian Minerva and companies in Switzerland and Italy. Mr. Knight's conquest of the mechanical situation in the British Isles and in Europe came as a climax to the general demand for a silent, efficient engine. The severest tests known to motor engineers were conducted with Mr. Knight's engines throughout Europe and as a result automobile making in the Old World has been revolutionized.

Most of the Americans who are in London to witness the coronation this month have their cars with them and are spending a good bit of the time motoring about the points of interest, according to Keith L. Goode, manager of the Diamond tire forces in Europe, who has just returned to his headquarters at 5 Rue Denis-Poisson, Paris, after a trip to the English capital.

Mr. Goode says indications point to more American motorists in Europe this Summer than ever before. After the coronation the majority of Americans will ship their cars to France and spend some time on the continent.

These tourists, of course, seek American-made tires for renewals while the European demand for tires of American manufacture is growing greater every day.

WANT AD BRINGS THIS MAN A WIFE

BROCKTON, June 12.—F. W. Batchelder, a Montello contractor, put a want ad in the paper to get him a housekeeper and it is bringing him a wife. Batchelder advertised two weeks ago. Miss Mabel L. Knapp of Elmwood replied. She got the job. She filled the bill. Batchelder fell in love with her. The pair have just taken out a license to wed at City Hall and will be married in two weeks.

Have You Turned Your Back Upon the People, Mr. La Follette?

WHAT shall the American people think of the moral confusion of politics when they see such a man as you, Senator La Follette, strike hands with Root, Smoot, Bailey and Gallinger to defeat the Reciprocity bill?

It was a spectacle of bewilderment—that scene in the Senate Finance Committee room—when you turned away from the most urgent popular cause of a generation and voted for the Root amendment—to spite the President!

You, Mr. La Follette, have in the past seemed always to stand up for the public. You have struck telling blows at the corruption of Senators, and have rebuked with unsparing tongue that low subservience to private interests which is the shame of the Senate in these times.

You have taken the lead in bringing the Lorimer scandal into the light of day!

Yet in this matter of the Root conspiracy for the defeat of Reciprocity you know, and the people know, that you are putting yourself in the service of the Lumber Trust and the allied interests that have created and sustained that same Lorimer. You see, and everybody sees, that you are in the company of Senators who are far from the people, and to whom great public enemies are familiar friends.

The people cannot believe that you are venal. But how can they help believing that you have been tempted to football the public welfare for the hope of winning a political game?

It is not too late to turn back, Mr. La Follette; and the AMERICAN, with a multitude of your friends, hopes that you WILL return to the people and to your former self.

The cause of Reciprocity touches the quick of people's lives. It reaches to bare cupboards and promises an easing of the economic strain in a million households. It is not the kind of a measure that lends itself lightly to the game of party factions.

You have made a mistake, Mr. La Follette, and should correct it—before it is too late.

This newspaper has been with you in many battles for the public right. And it would gladly be with you in many more. But it cannot be with you in the way you are now going.

If you continue on this path, how can the people help believing that you care more to be President than to be right? And how can you ever BE President if the people think that of you?

Kill the Fly. Every Dead Fly Means a Million UNDISTRIBUTED Germs

Here Is an Excellent Brief Sermon on "Fly Swatting," Which We Gladly Republish.

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner.

Chicago has become the centre of the most vicious battle against the disease-spreading fly.

Organizations known as "Swat the Fly" clubs have been formed everywhere. Business men at luncheon, engrossed in the most serious conversation, will interrupt each other with a forcible blow on the chest, or a magnificent sweep of the open hand along the surface of the table, to grab several flies at once. One of the best "Swat the Fly" essays that we have seen has recently been composed by a combination genius known as B. L. T. Keeley, and this we gladly reprint here.

There is one habit the dangerous house fly has which in humans would be commendable, but which, in the case of the insect, is what makes him a menace. HE WIPES HIS FEET. He wipes his feet on the food you eat and on the faces of your sleeping children. He is a frequenter of offal; the female lays her eggs in the manure piles. The flies in millions settle on the refuse and on the sewage wherever it is exposed.

All the germs, all imaginable horrible microbes, fasten themselves to the spongy feet of the fly, and the fly brings them into the house, and there WIPES THEM OFF HIS FEET. And that is how typhoid and other deadly diseases are spread.

Watch a fly alight upon a lump of sugar. Note how he shuffles his front feet. He is wiping from his front feet all the germs and filth he has brought into the house. He leaves them on the sugar. They are so small you can't see them, but they are there by the thousand, just the same.

See that every door and every window is tightly screened; close any apertures which would admit flies. Have springs on the doors so that they will slam tightly shut when you have passed through.

When you enter a room in your house, look about for flies. If you see one, do not let him escape alive.

There is no more industrious spreader of disease than the fly. Man has no more dangerous enemy than the fly. Thorough screening of houses will keep them out, but you must have this done early. If you are late in taking the precaution, the early fly will get in and breed a million others in a month. Then your screens are useless.

Take a day off and go thoroughly through your house, especially the basement. Get out all the old rags and bits of carpets which have been thrown there. They are probably moldy and useless. They are fine breeding places for Mrs. Fly. Burn them up.

See that all rubbish and dust are also carried out. Examine the garbage pails. See that the covers fit tightly. Spray the cans inside and out with kerosene and carbolic acid. The flies will keep away from anything so sprayed. Wet a cloth with kerosene and wipe off the outside of each screen door every morning. This will keep the flies from hovering about the doors for a chance to enter.

These are all measures for health. They may save doctor's bills; they may even save your child from death. The expense is trifling compared with the results.

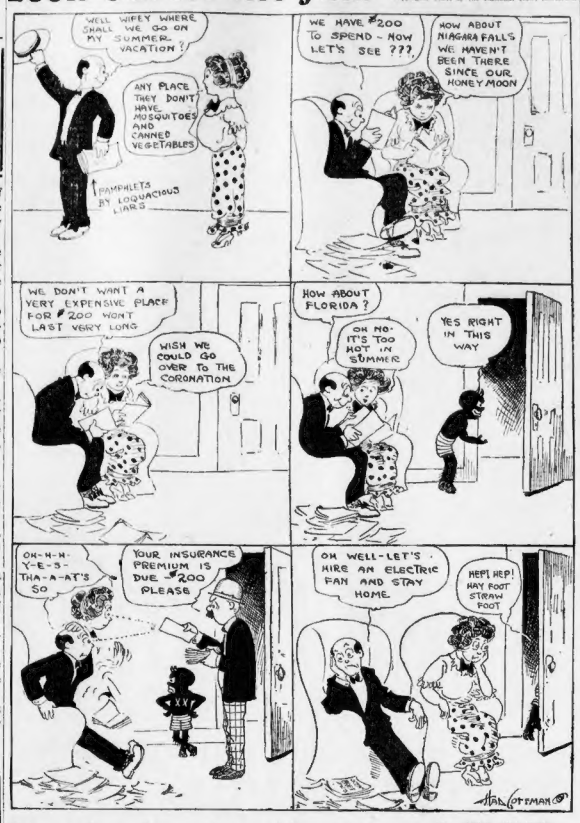

Keep milk and all food from contamination by flies.

Don't forget the fly. Get rid of it by any means.

THE PENSION QUESTION HERE AND IN ENGLAND

Written for the Boston American

By Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association

THE pension question is looming up large, both in this country and in England. The socialistic tendencies are asserting themselves, and the disposition is a growing one to let society take care of people, instead of requiring them to take exclusive care of themselves. A part of this is Christianity, and a part of it is politics.

When the early Christians at Jerusalem adopted the principle not only of socialism, but even of communism, there was no politics in it—but the pure Christ impulse, simple and undiluted. Perhaps it was due to its communism that it continued for a time to be a poor church, but even so, its poverty was due to mutual affection and generosity, however mistaken in its way of exercising itself.

The socialistic pension idea as it is now diffusing itself has in it likewise a considerable amount of commendable impulse. It is in part an attempt to render their dues to some who have not hitherto received all their dues, and to even up inequalities.

What we are doing for our old soldiers is, up to a certain point, the payment of a debt and the expression of our sense of obligation to them for having preserved our country united and intact, and for having secured to us the maintenance of our cherished institutions. Some of it, however, is politics, and is in the nature of blackmail offered for the purchase of votes.

The Masses No Longer a Negligible Quantity in England

What Mr. Lloyd-George is accomplishing in England by his insurance programme is very much in the same order as the granting of pensions, only made available before the workingman's laboring days are over, since it is made applicable in cases of sickness and non-employment. Its advantages, he promises, are to be so widely extended as to include even domestic servants. His bill is undoubtedly framed in part with a view to political results.

The masses, which at one time did not make a large figure in the political life of England, have ceased to be a negligible quantity. Both parties now stand in dire need of the support of the laboring classes, and it is for that reason that this motion which is brought forward by a liberal government is not antagonized by the conservatives. Even the nobility covet the voting sympathy of the commonalty.

Realizing that exceedingly often the poor are poorer than it is just that they should be, and that equally often the rich have more money than fairly belongs to them, we certainly cannot regret the adoption by government of a policy—however smattering of socialism—that will tend in some measure to equalize conditions.

Too Much Use of Crutch Eventuates in Paralysis.

In giving shape to measures of this character, whether it be pension or insurance, one fact needing to be held steadily in mind is that bestowing upon people money that is not acknowledged to have been distinctly earned tends to pauperization and to the weakening of the impulse of self-maintenance.

It is to the interests of character than a man do everything for himself that he can. Too much use of the crutch eventuates in paralysis. We are less likely to be frugal and to economize the pennies and the dollars if we know that some one is standing by with gratuitous pennies and dollars earned by somebody else. It cuts the nerve of ambition to know that what we do not do somebody is waiting to do for us. There would not be nearly as many men standing around idle if they did not suppose that someone else's nickel stood between them and starvation.

But He's Dead

By KENNETT HARRIS

THERE once was a perfectly virtuous man,
But he's dead. Stone dead!
I have heard that his life had a very brief span,
But he's dead, that is certain; deny it who can,
And a yew tree grows over his head.
His standards were high; pretty close to sublimity,
He was honest and brave, with a fine magnanimity;
But his wife just wore calico, gingham and dimity,
And he's dead.

He was a most just and exemplary man,
But he's dead. Stone dead!
Some asserted his skin had a stuffing of bran,
And entries were few in the race that he ran.
So no wonder he came out ahead.
He was friendly and kind, showed no trace of formality;
He had charity joined with the finest morality;
But he didn't rank high in his native locality,
And he's dead.

You hear of some quite meritorious man,
But he's dead. Stone dead!
In his life he was under the deadliest ban.
His name you will find on the tombstones you scan.
Now and then they have lapped him in lead.
If he lived all his days, in impeccable purity,
And his word was quite equal to chattel security;
He is calmly awaiting a blissful futurity.
He is dead.

The American Woman Who SAT in the Presence of Nobility

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

THERE is little that has happened abroad in some time so calculated to make the hearts of patriotic Americans swell with pride as the news concerning a Derby night party given by the Duchess of Devonshire.

It was one of those events where all the guests had handles to their names, and there was much bowing out backward, and the trains of the women were as long as their titles.

But in all this army of pomp and power an American woman ranked first, and that is why you must get out your red, white and blue and give it a wave.

The woman is the wife of Ambassador Reid, and the thing she did which made her take first rank with all those great ladies, and which causes the waving of red, white and blue on this side, was to appear in a gown so closely embroidered with diamonds and pearls that its weight was more than she could carry, and she had to remain seated all evening.

Other women, with less regard for power, position or nationality, walked about untrammelled, but the wife of the first American knew what was due her position, and wore a dress that literally weighted her down.

Her fatigue was so great after an hour's wearing of the garment that she was forced to retire, but her retirement, though aided, was like that of a victorious general from a field of battle. She may have limped a little because of the heavy weight she bore, but think of her triumph.

Think of the noble example she has set for women in lower ranks of life! They have been known to rebel at the added weight of an ostrich plume on a hat, or ten or more pounds added to a muff, or beaded trimming on a waist, all assumed under orders from a tyrant, Fashion; and here is a woman who, to make her country proud, voluntarily wears a dress so heavy she could stand with it on.

The letters from Ireland written by Mr. C. O'Connell Galvin, the Sunday AMERICAN'S special commissioner to the Emerald Isle, have aroused great interest throughout New England because of their graphic descriptions of scenes and incidents of his trip. Those who read his stories see things as they are and through the eyes of Americans who love Ireland and take a deep interest in the aggressive fight that is being made there for Home Rule and other better conditions. Another instalment of these letters, written on the "Ould Sod," will appear in next Sunday's AMERICAN.
